the 1960 POST

Continental fingers point with PRIDE...Pardon our PRIDE as we praise the personalities from pupils to pedagogues...as we applaud classroom performances... as we point with PRIDE to our progress and potential...Continentals share in this feeling of PRIDE from the fledging freshmen who set their four-year goals to the secure seniors who look back with PRIDE on four fine years and forward to a promising future...Whether undefeated on the football field or floundering for a correct classroom answer, Continentals point with PRIDE to their teams...Block W's, Purple and White pom pons help us boast...with PRIDE!

Pardon our Pride...

but we're from Washington

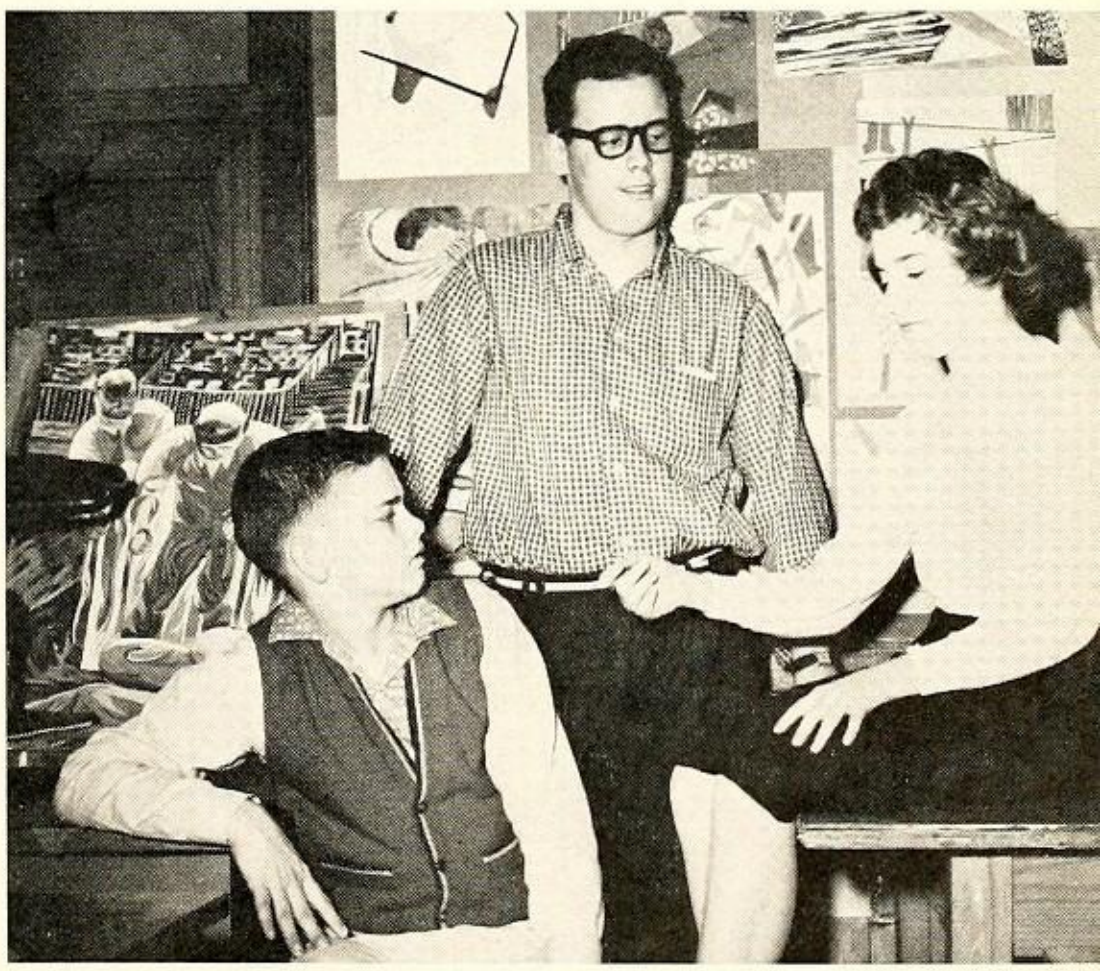
ANTHONY WAYNE
1745-1796
Wayne Township was named for Gen. Anthony Wayne. This hero of the Revolution defeated the Indians at Fallen Timbers, 1794, and opened large areas for settlement by the Treaty of Greene Ville, 1795.

Proudly displaying the Anthony Wayne marker are Louise Swarts, Sandra Adams, author of the award winning inscription, and Don Lindsey.

Presenting the Outstanding Girl Scientist of Indiana award to Pat Coleman is Mr. Ernest Litweiler, who is a member of the Junior Academy of Science.

Top students achieve honors

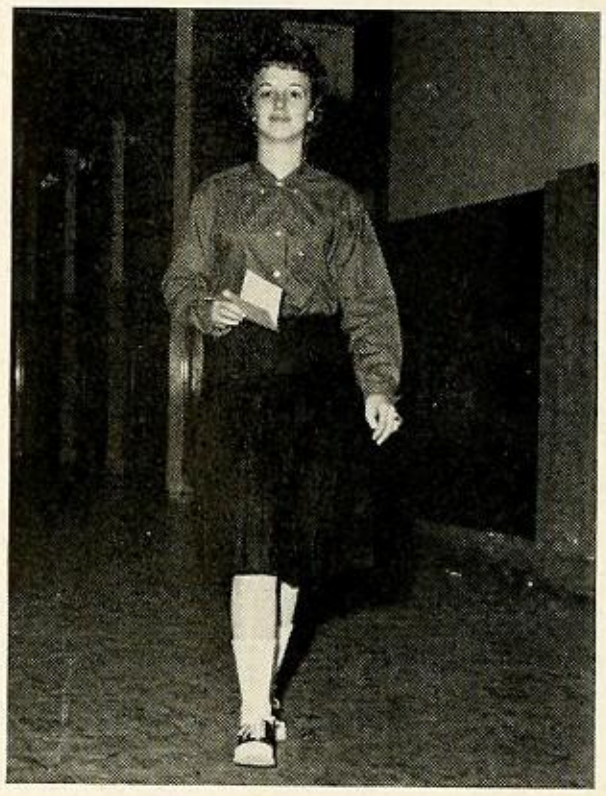
Each year Continentals achieve lasting recognition for Washington by bringing many honors and awards. We take pride in these outstanding students and their various honored activities. Our football team ended the season with an undefeated record, and our cross country team became sectional champs. An active history student wrote the winning inscription to be placed on a marker commemorating Anthony Wayne; the council of the Indiana Junior Academy of Science selected a Washington student as Indiana's Top Girl Scientist. The Art Department also won many honors during the past year. We at Washington are proud of the students who work to bring recognition to our school.



Winners of the Gold Key Award, Edward Huth, Bob Grimes, and Sharon Green observe the medal.

Friendly persuasion is what Pam Hendrickson is using as she gives an apple to cadet teacher Jim Livingston.

Our pride extends to the joint effort of the student body and faculty, making the wheels of Washington run in a smooth and efficient manner. Certain tasks, though they seem minor, are important and require the aid of students to perform them. These are the jobs given to the voluntary students who wish to assist in the huge task of running a successful school system. Ushers scurry through the halls delivering call slips or messages to teachers. The jobs they perform save the teachers the effort of searching for a desired person. Working in the cafeteria, the library, the science laboratory, the clinic, or as gym assistant can be entertaining as well as educational. The clinic assistant meets students, listens to their tales, and aids in treating wounds. Assistants serve the school, meeting many classmates and forming lasting friendships.



Busy carrying messages and call slips is usher Sharon Vance.

Repeating call numbers and replacing books on shelves, Sandra Wheeler preforms her job as library assistant.

Assisting in the Art Department, Barbara Fink helps arrange displays for the interest of the students.

Marching Continentals display their abilities and talent during a parade under the direction of R. O. T. C. sponsors and officers.

Events keep pupils buzzing

Celebrating victories of the season, our gridders eye a victory cake baked by a proud parent.

Continentals are constantly on the go, students and alumni alike. Parents and teachers participate in school sponsored activities and plan and work with our capable P-TA officers.

Students prepare homework assignments, fill after school hours with part-time jobs, club meetings, coke dates, church organizations, and various recreational sports.

"People on the go" describes the students and alumni of Washington High School. These activities in which Continentals participate so whole-heartedly serve to make high school days more enjoyable to the students and parents.

Joining in the cheers by leading faculty cheerblock are Mrs. Burdeen Schmidt and Mr. Ed Manetta.

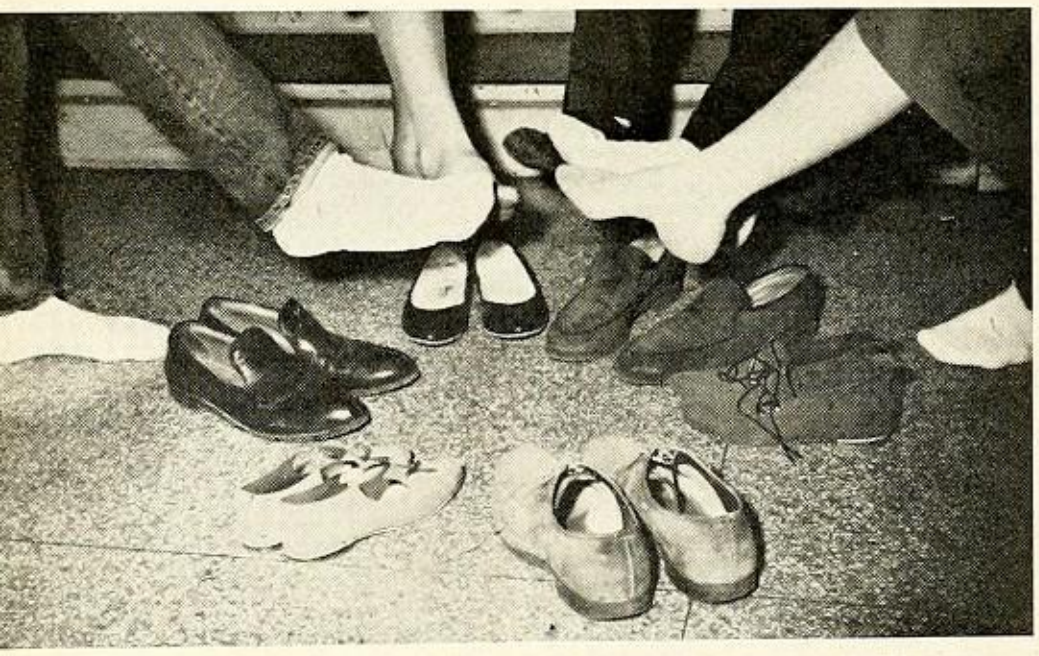
Attending the Senior Reception are Barbara Keller, David Wright, Mrs. Harry Harrington, Mr. Don Kramer, and Linda Martin.

P-TA keeps busy

Viewing the plans for the coming year, the P-TA officers Mrs William Becker, vice-president; Mrs. Harry Harrington, president; Mrs. Aaron Leak, recording secretary; and Mrs. James Leeper, corresponding secretary, discuss various suggestions given them by alumni, faculty, and members of the student body.

Displaying the recent blouse and shirt wear, Jim Schwartz, Marsha Blankenship, Irene May, Don Lindsey, and David Horner jovially note the unusual styles.

Footwear style and comfort are compared by shoeless Continentals in a discussion of fads.



Executive-type wheels, Ronnie Ellis, Charles Meisenheimer, Larry Glaze, and Bill Pinkston demonstrate the latest fad in masculine headgear.

Fads forever

Developing and characterizing each school year, fads have lived a short existence and, later, have lost popularity. Poncho and split level blouses, distinguished hats, and weird shoes were a few of the '59-'60 fads. Originated by the minority, these weird-types of clothing and accessories have dominated the average student. Shortly after the majority of students obtained the item, another fad developed and pushed the preceeding one out of style. Each year, fads have added spice and vigor to our routine life and will continue to live, fade, and be replaced by fads of future Continentals.

Over the years many traditions have been developed at Washington. These traditions vary from the annual Thanksgiving Day convocation to the pep sessions which are held before a big game. Each February, a convocation is held in honor of George Washington, the father of our country, and later in the year, an annual Christmas play is presented. Although styles of dancing are forever changing, Continentals anxiously await the arrival of the traditional Jr. or Sr. Prom. As the school year closes, Award's Day climaxes the end of another traditional year.

Portraying the famous couple, Martha and George Washington, are Rebecca Cordova and Rodney Hoschouer.

At Washington we have the utmost PRIDE in all of our classes. . . . As Washington students, we are continually striving, exploring, solving, and perfecting in order to prepare for college or whatever profession we may enter after graduation. . . . Throughout the school year we show our PRIDE by working to gain qualities of leadership, ingenuity, and integrity. . . . Scholarships and awards are given to the achievers with PRIDE unequaled for jobs well done. . . The tendency of the student body and faculty to act as a unit and work together adds to the fulfillment of the instinctive desire for learning and making friends. . . .

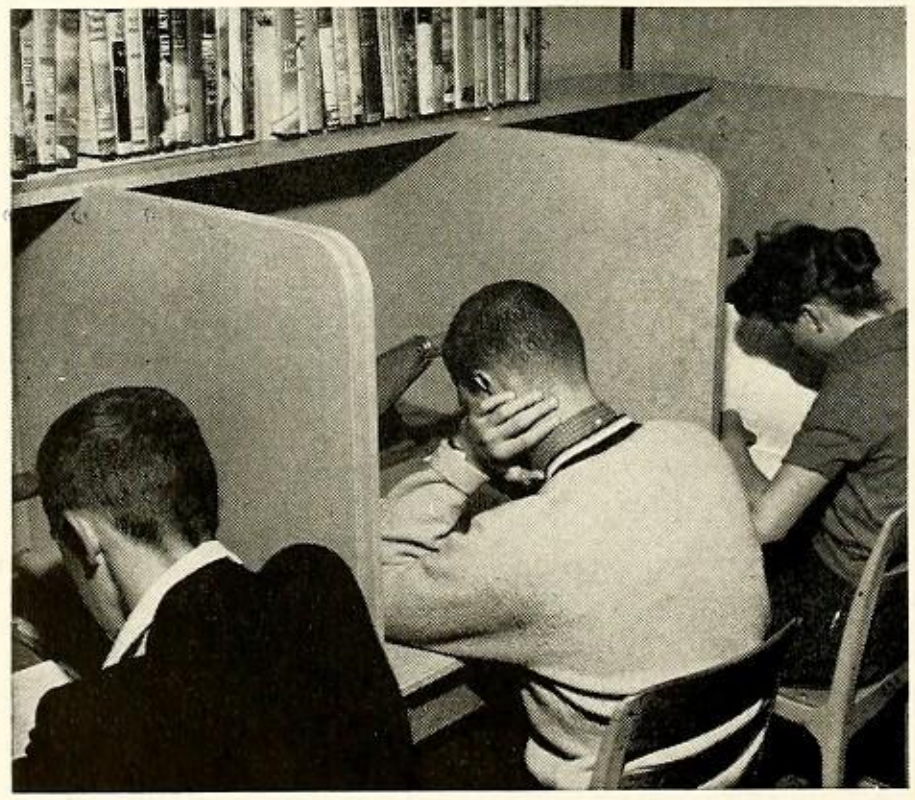
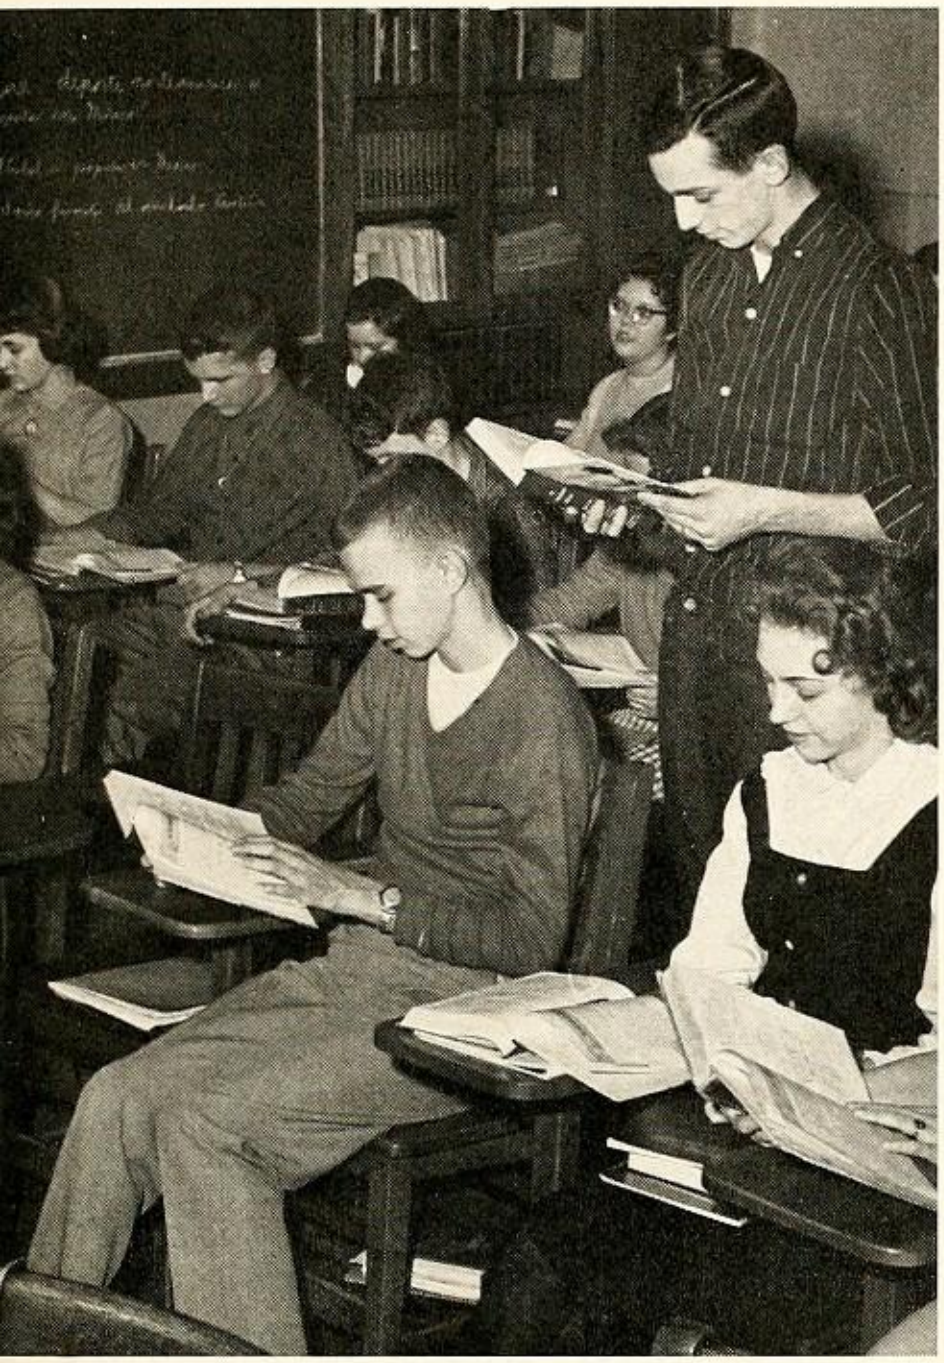
Students find own language complex



Finding the reading laboratory, part of their English preparation, a valuable aid in speed and comprehension are John Kidwell, Darrell Lawson, and Glenda Ligon.

Working to improve facilities in the English language, we master the four fundamental skills emphasized by the English Department, reading, writing, speaking, and listening. These skills stimulate our thinking and increase our abilities in self expression. Learning to speak effectively, students in speech classes develop proper enunciation, voice mechanics, projection, and pitch variation. By writing themes and reviewing language usage, students prepare for college through Advanced Composition.

Students interested in poetry have a chance to compete in the annual Poetry Reading Contest sponsored by the English Department.



Selling "Caper" tickets or aiding hungry people through the Care fund, members of the language department not only prepare for future employment, but take an active part in school as well as world affairs. Students who are enrolled in these courses soon find that the study of Roman or Spanish history can be fun. Since most English words are based on Latin or Spanish roots, this study is ideal for increasing one's vocabulary and for gaining interest in, as well as knowledge of, constructions found in English. The study of history, customs, language, and everyday life are fundamental aspects found in both courses. Each language offers advanced training for those who find language necessary for future study or vocations. This year, as in every year, the combined efforts of all language classes sent money to the Care fund. By taking part in school functions, world affairs, or the Latin and Spanish Clubs, language students have fun.

Reciting in class, Gary Stutz, assisted by Mrs. Fimie Richie, translates a Spanish story.

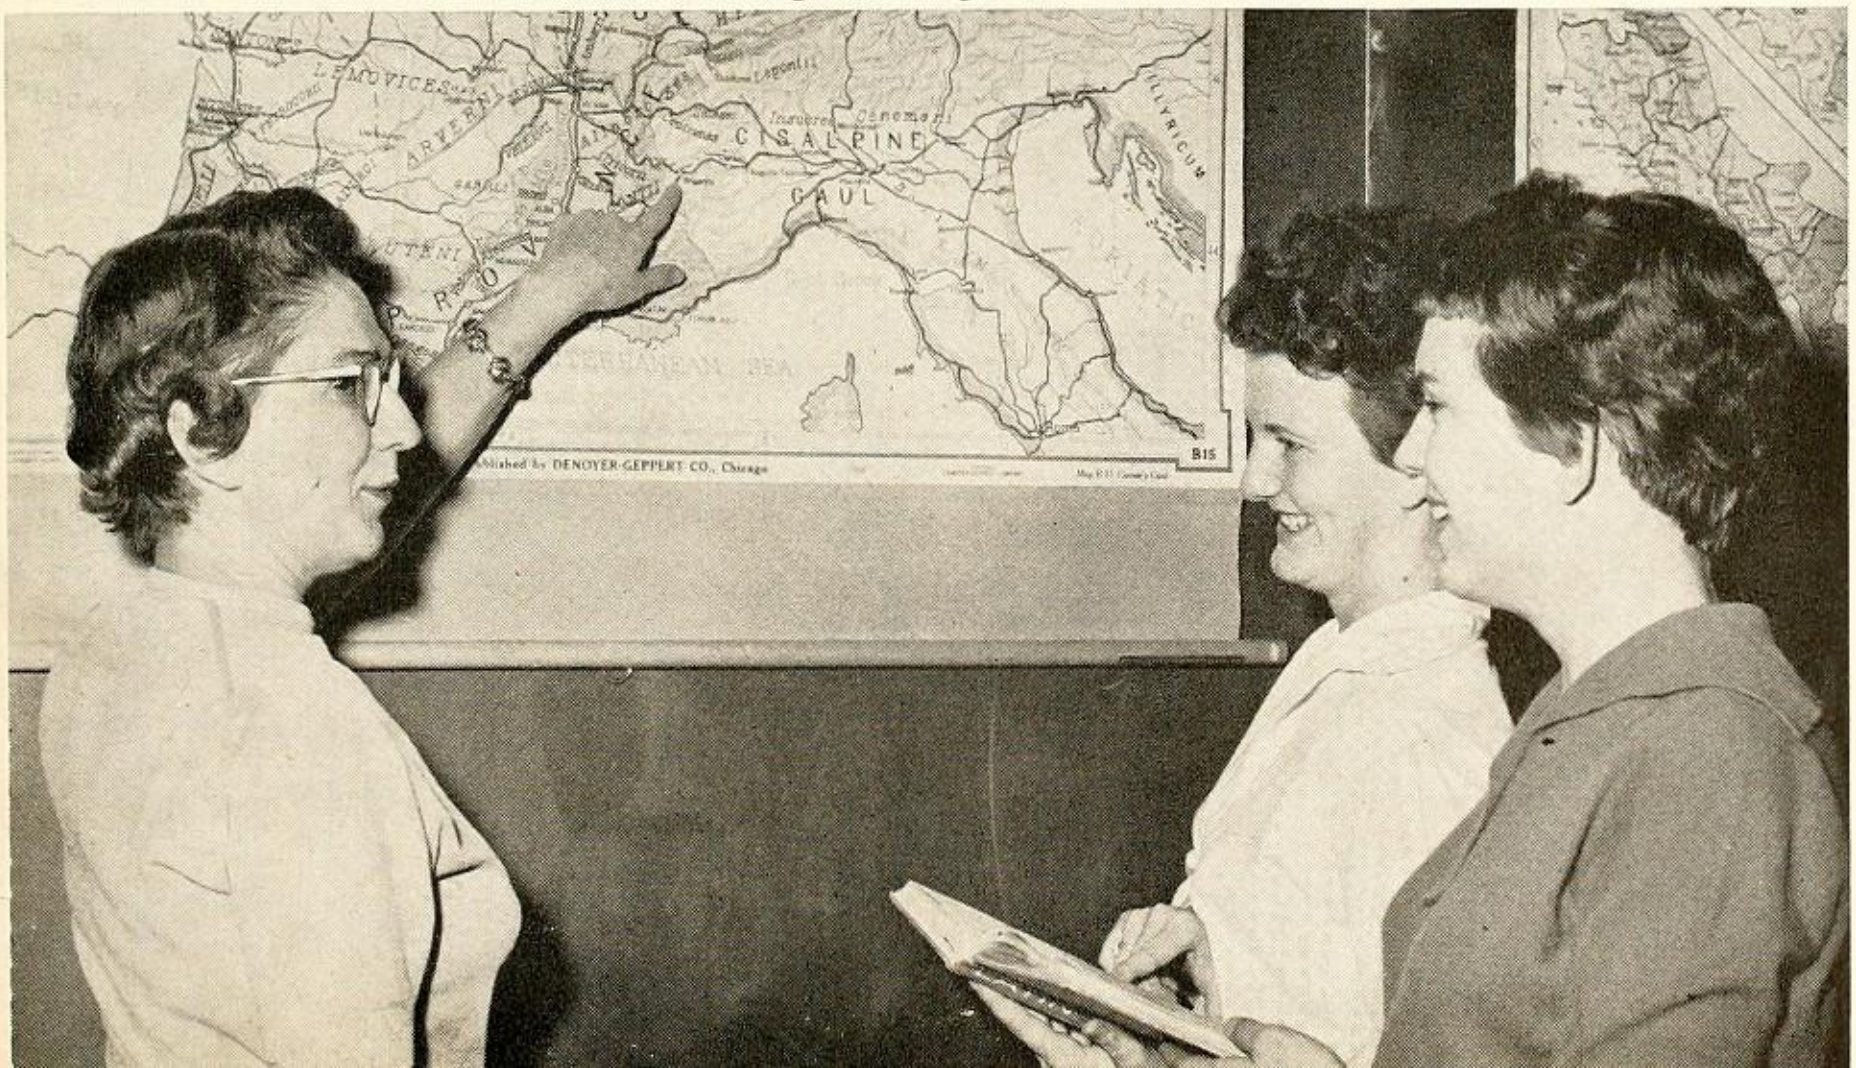
Pointing the way, Mrs. Irene Cory shows Pat Merritt and Mary Ann West the route of Caesar's march through the Alps.

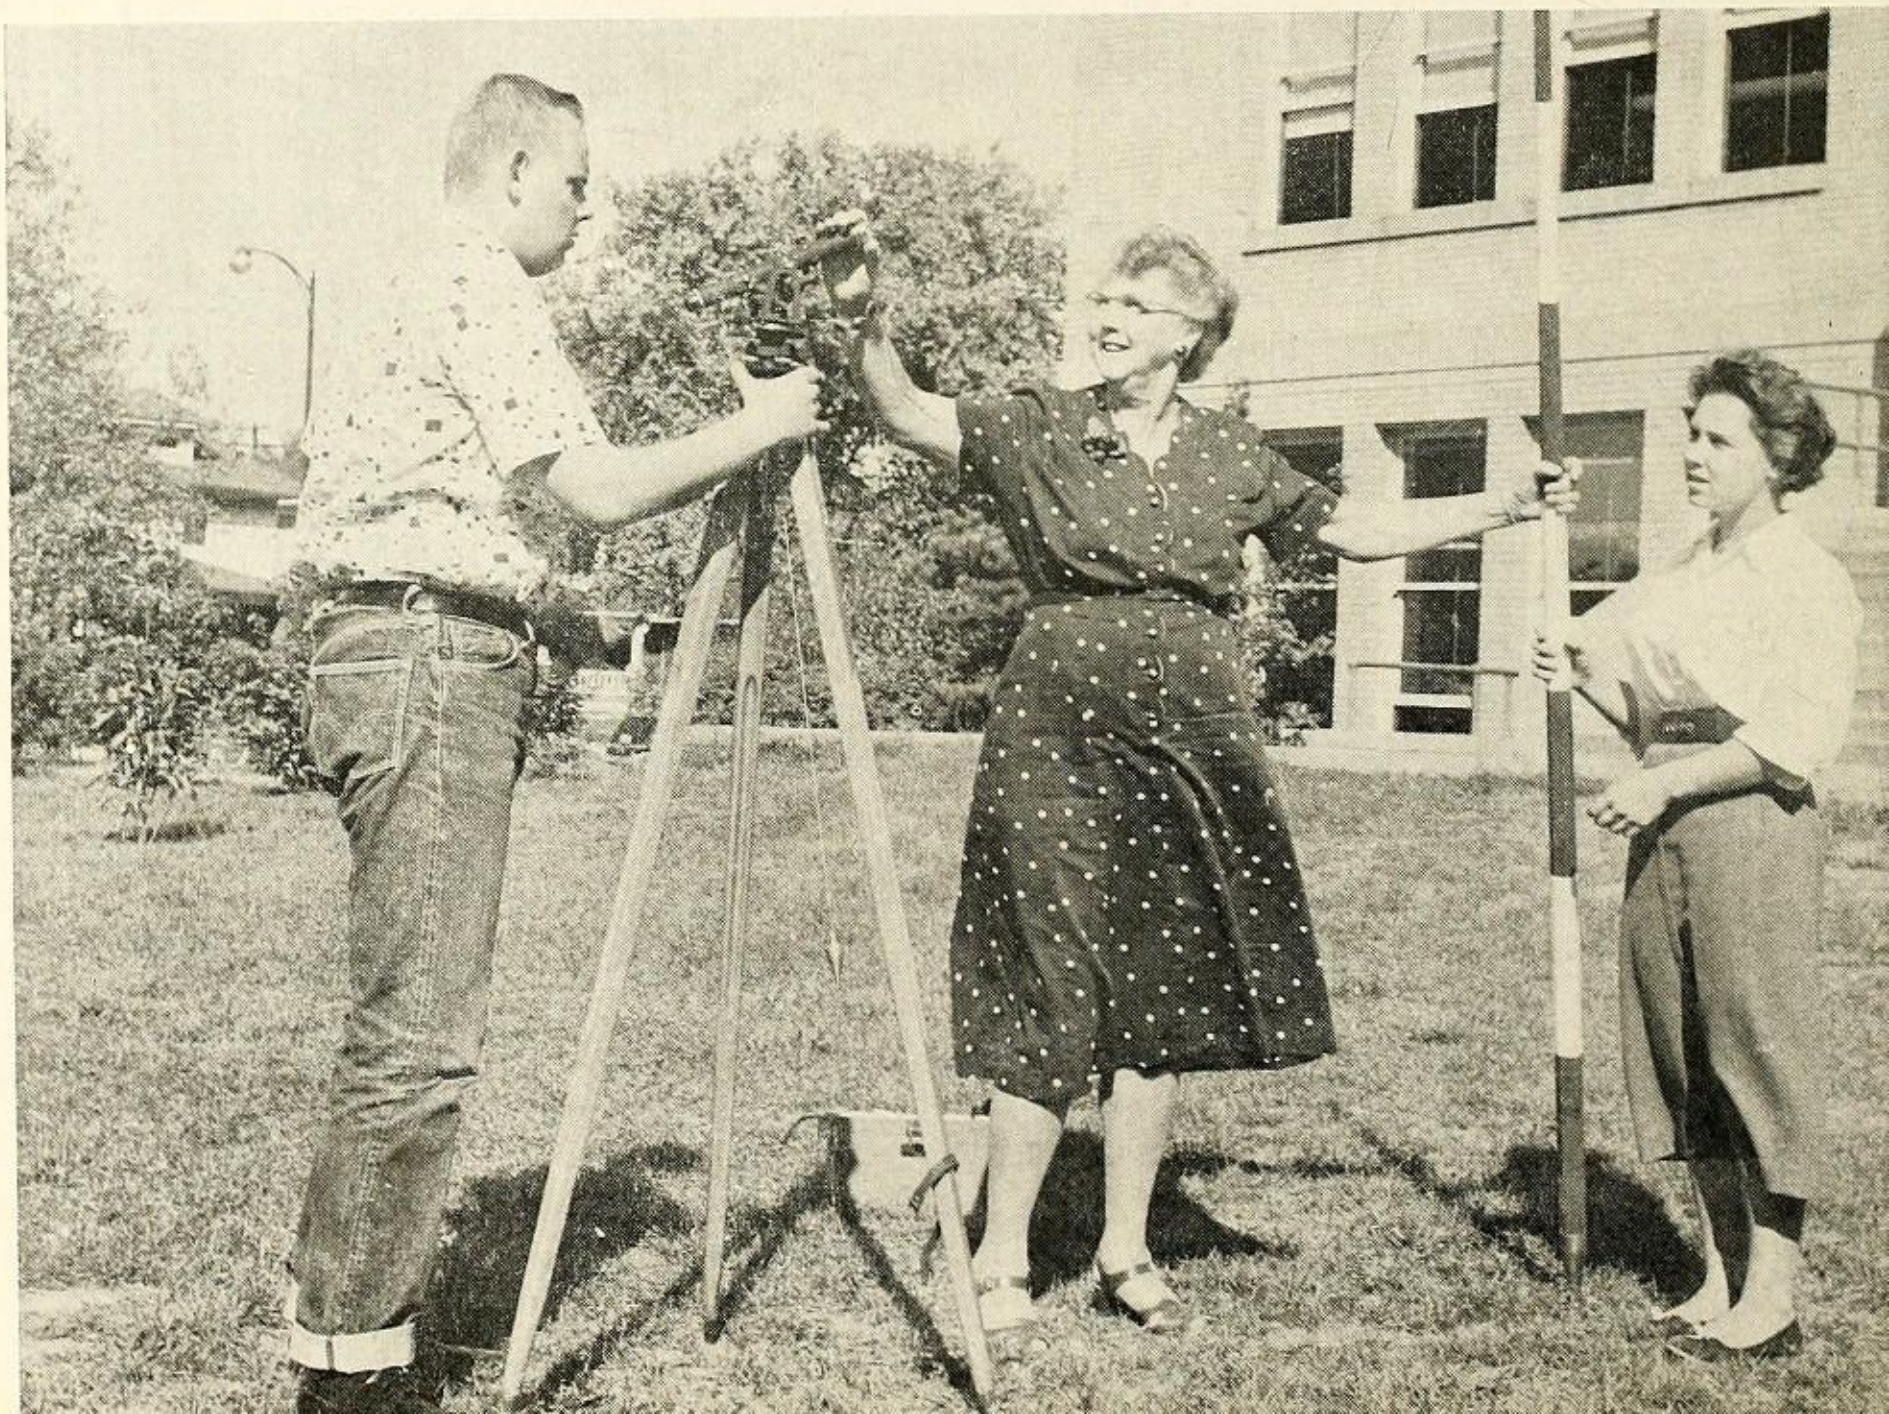


Problems and more problems are what Mr. Kenneth Schuster finds in aiding Karen Hessel with her Algebra.

2-4-6-8 Whom do we appreciate? Why the entire department devoted to mathematics, of course. The foundation for every occupation, math is necessary for success in any profession. From the six math courses offered, students may select those subjects suited to their capacities and educational needs. The series starts with general math, algebra, and geometry leading up to trigonometry, college algebra, and analytic geometry for seniors. When taken in proper sequence, these courses help the student develop knowledge that will aid him in the field of his choice. We are proud of the opportunities offered, and we appreciate the curricular scope given to us by our math department. This foundation will help build a successful and worthwhile life in any occupation.

Math provides knowledge for future

Trigonometry students, Larry Bridges and Sandra Durham, with the help of Miss Vivian Ely, are using the transit to survey our school building.



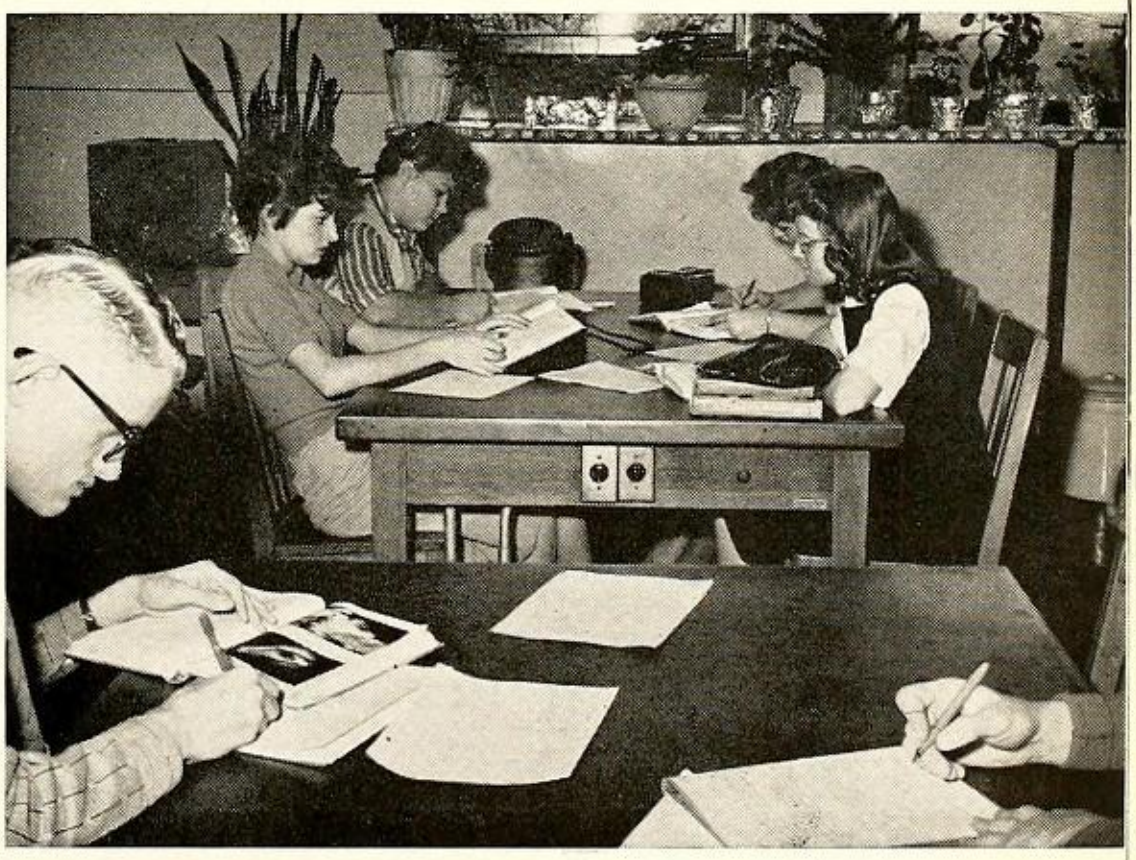
Observing an intriguing experiment by Norma Archer are Shirley Jent, Peggy Bilyeu, and Bob Leeper.

Science gains new popularity

In this age of jet propulsion, Continentals feel a growing need for extended study in the field of science. This year, with the addition of a new science laboratory, this phase of our curriculum is becoming more impressive and stimulating. In these various science courses students learn principles and gain knowledge of the latest scientific developments.

Chemistry deals with the composition of substances while biology deals with the production and growth of plants and animals. Physical science, a more recent course, consists of the study of heat, electricity, and sound.

The faculty encourages Continentals to attain outstanding achievements for there are numerous careers open in the field of science for those who wish to experiment with new ideas.



Studying diligently for a test, these science students are absorbed in their laboratory work.

Explaining the answer to a geography question asked by Mr. Russell McConnell, Jeannette Brown points out Nebraska to her classmates, Carolyn Bradley and Lou Cape. Knowing the location of each state proves helpful.

Students learn past, present, and future

A review of history is the best cure for uncertainty and dismay. Through the study of history, students gain an appreciation for their heritage and freedom and a desire to protect them. The social studies department at Washington can be proud of its many achievements.

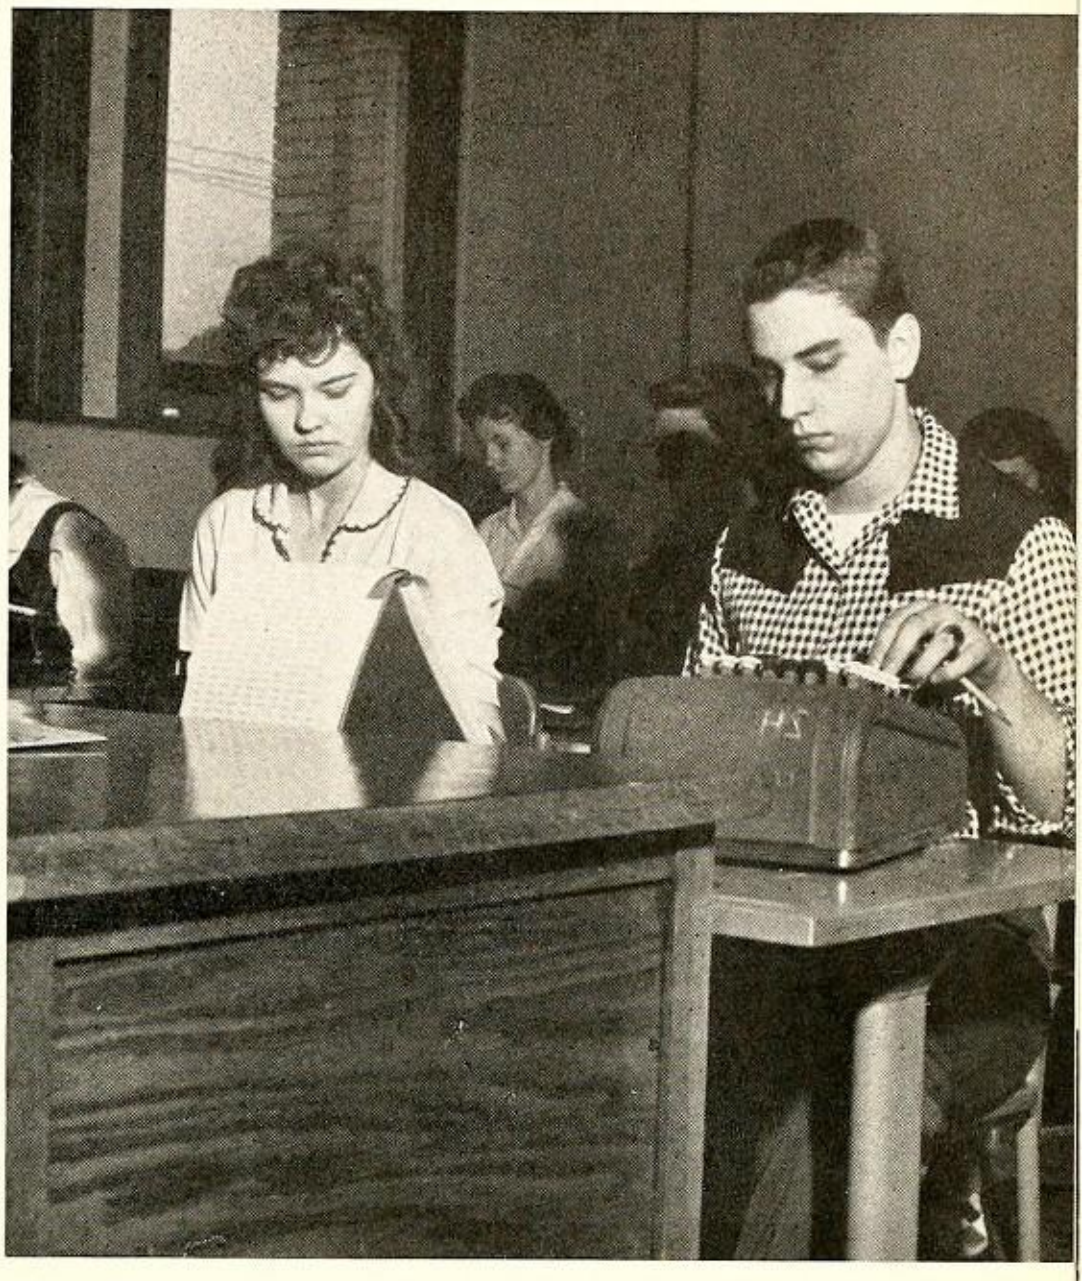
Each year a student is elected by the student body to be sent to the United Nations. This pupil witnesses inter-national negotiations and reports his observations to his classmates.

Annually scholarships are awarded by the Lilly Foundation and Junior Chamber of Commerce to students with outstanding achievements.

The fundamentals of Communism have been taught in the government classes for the first time this year. This course is designed to teach students how to meet and understand the enemy. Pupils find history rewarding as it represents the past and present and is the very foundation for advancement in the future.

Reading the letter she received from her Congressman, Linda Kinley receives the undivided attention from her government classmates.

No matter what profession students follow after graduation, whether it be a secretary, salesman, office clerk, or teacher, the business department will prove valuable. Typing is a valuable asset for students who plan to attend college after graduation. In office practice, students learn to operate the mimeograph machine and other equipment which are useful in the business world. The interest and knowledge gained in the business department often becomes the deciding factor in a student's career. Students who have had business education find it helpful when seeking a job.



Concentrating on hitting the right keys on the calculating machines are Doris Latta and Denton Nungester.

Students prepare for homemaking through such courses as foods, clothing, and family living. The essential arts that are necessary for today's living are seasoned and spiced in numerous courses involving various phases of family life. The completion of these courses has an influential effect on the challenge of individual success. In analyzing the basic needs of a happy family, such courses as home management, home hygiene, and family living answer the questions so often expressed in awkward terms. What are the causes of family arguments? How am I to improve the relationship between myself and my family? Why am I not understood by my parents? What are the requirements in a happy marriage? These questions and countless others are answered in detail and in understandable language.

Girls learn good housekeeping techniques

Baking pasteries is only one of the many projects of Barbara Harrison, Alice Underwood, and Pat Starlin, who are enrolled in cooking classes.

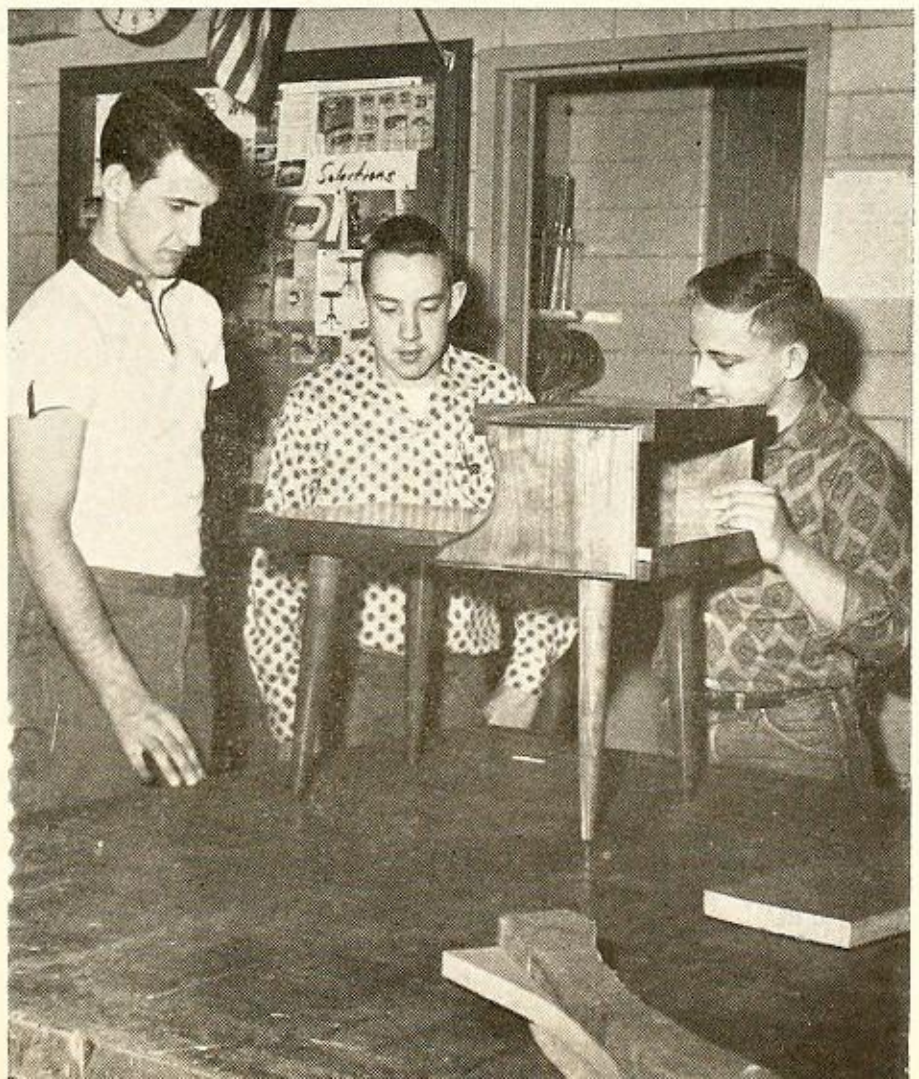
Learning to check those sticky valves and loose rings are Richard Glass, Frank Jessup, and Dick Gunning as they work on a student's car.

Vocational classes teach skills

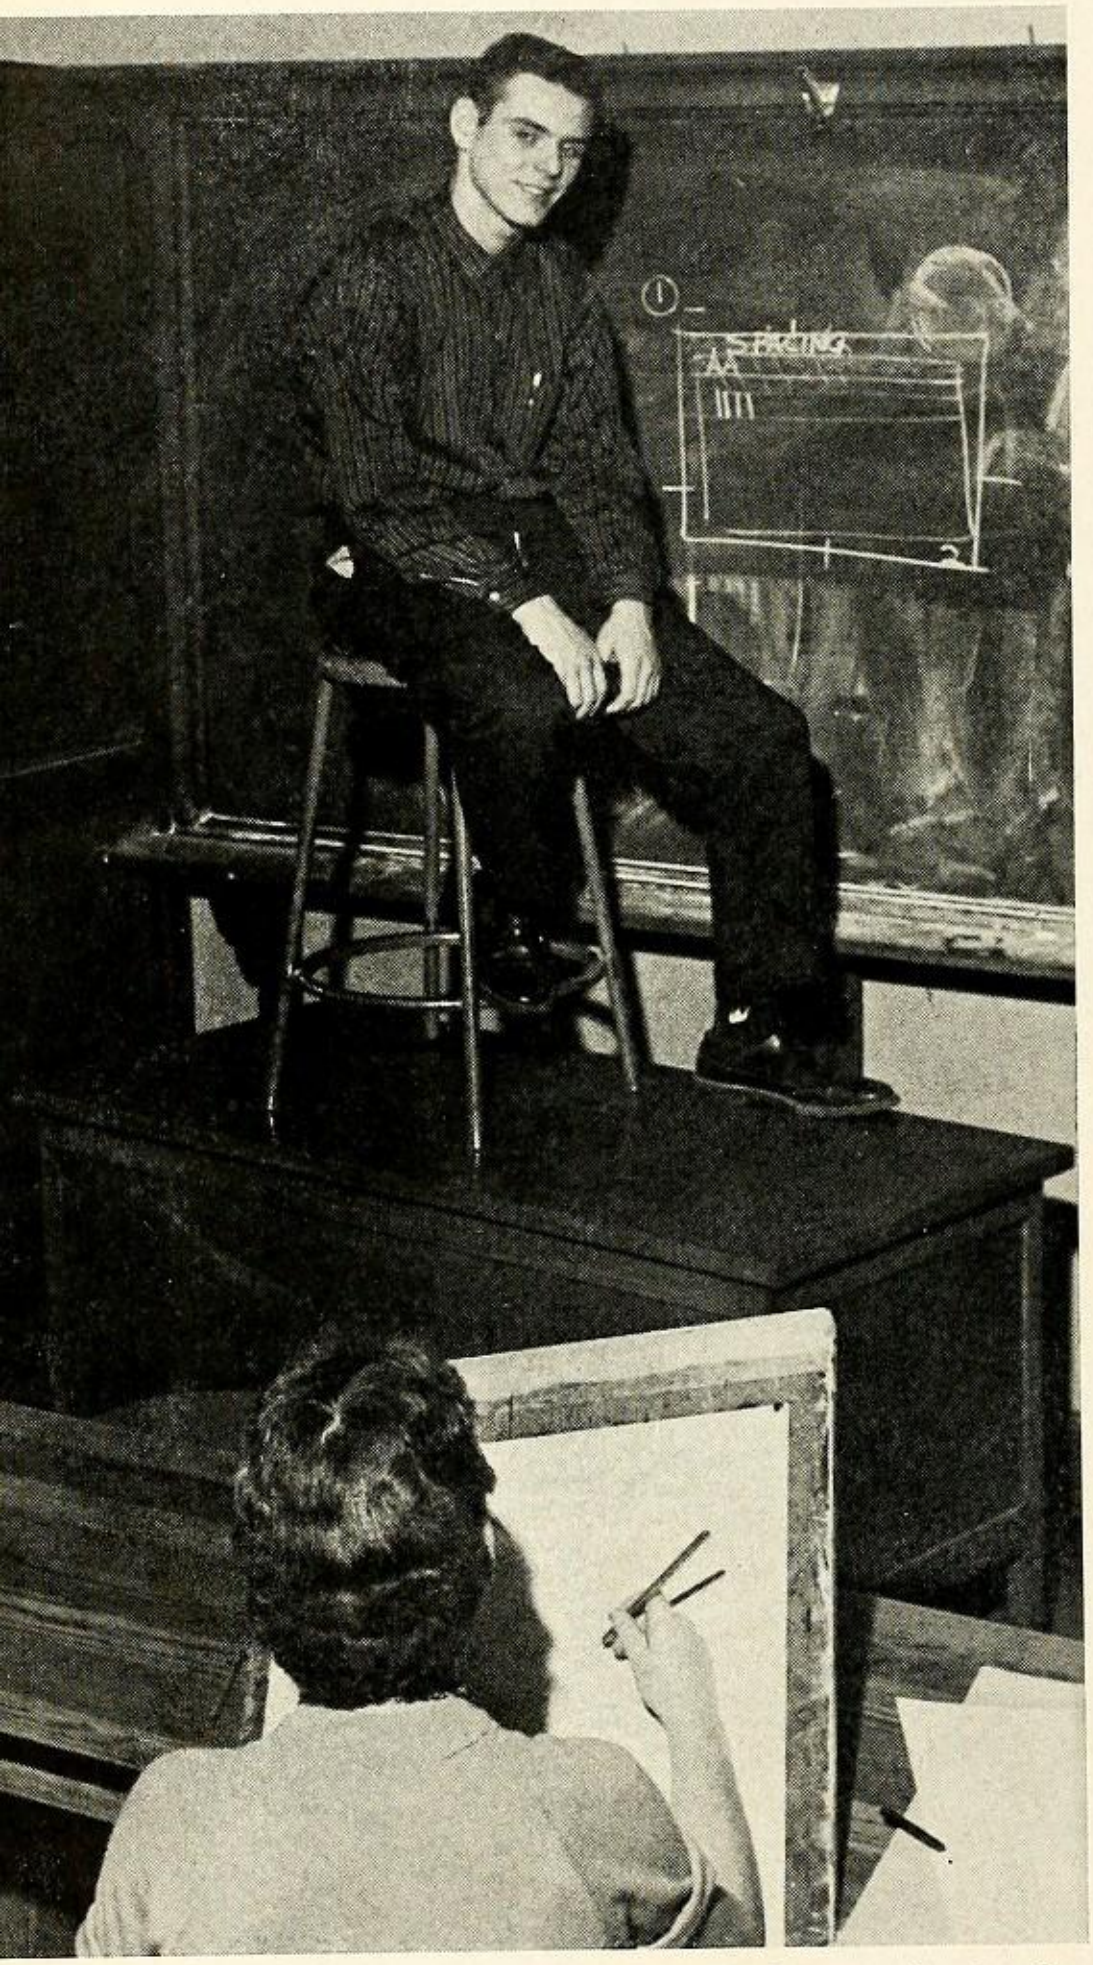
With the buzz of a saw, the music from a student-built radio, the purr of a motor, or the grinding of metal, Continental pupils enrolled in the Industrial Arts Department prepare for future employment. This buzz of a saw, coming from the Wood Shop, signifies that a future carpenter is striving to accomplish a new wood working project.

Rhythmical music from a student built radio, drifting through the hall near the electric shop, means that a student electrician has reached his goal. Unlike Humpty Dumpty, the purr of a motor states that boys in the auto shop have successfully put an engine back together again. In the machine shop, students have the opportunity to become skilled tool and die makers. Directed by Mr. U. D. Walker, pupils in this department are d e v e l o p i n g useful skills through Continental training.

After weeks of work Roger Ridenour is ready to display his project to Jerry Brock and Jeff Canary.

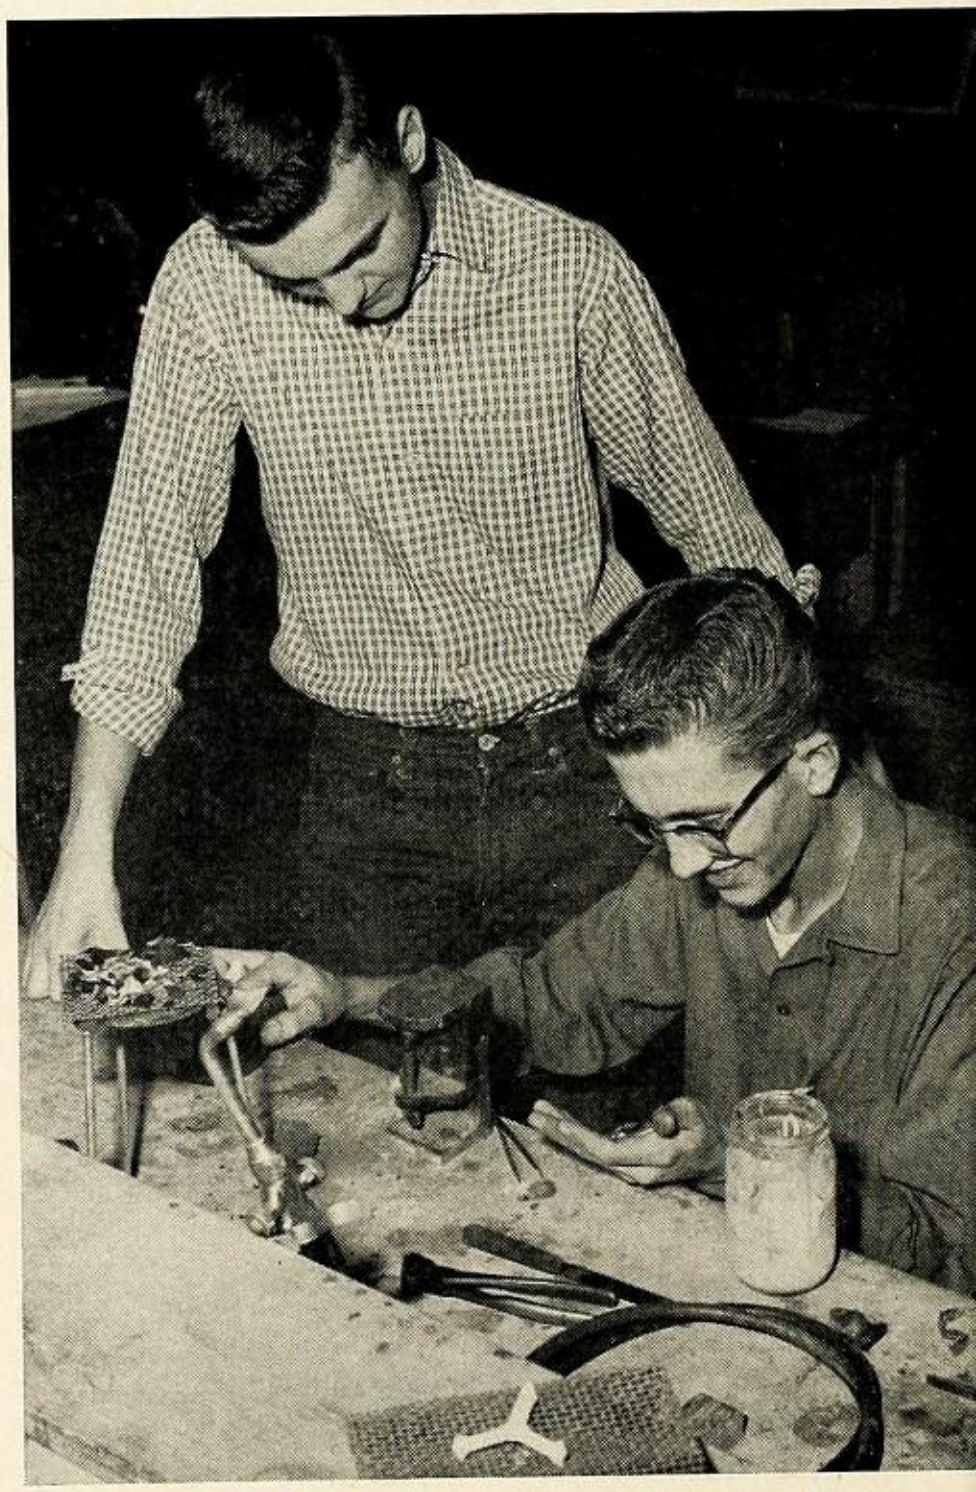


Art students repeat top awards



Posing for his classmates, Bob Faulkner waits to give his approval of the finished portrait.

The art department has converted the upper halls of the school into its own private art gallery. The exhibits change as progress is achieved by the talented students. Art students strive to achieve the perfect touch and color for designs. Art students consistently achieve honors in The Scholastic Art Exibition held annually at L. S. Ayres. In this contest Washington students recieved 42 honors. Of these fourteen were gold keys and twenty-eight were honorable mentions. We can be proud of Washington's fine art program.



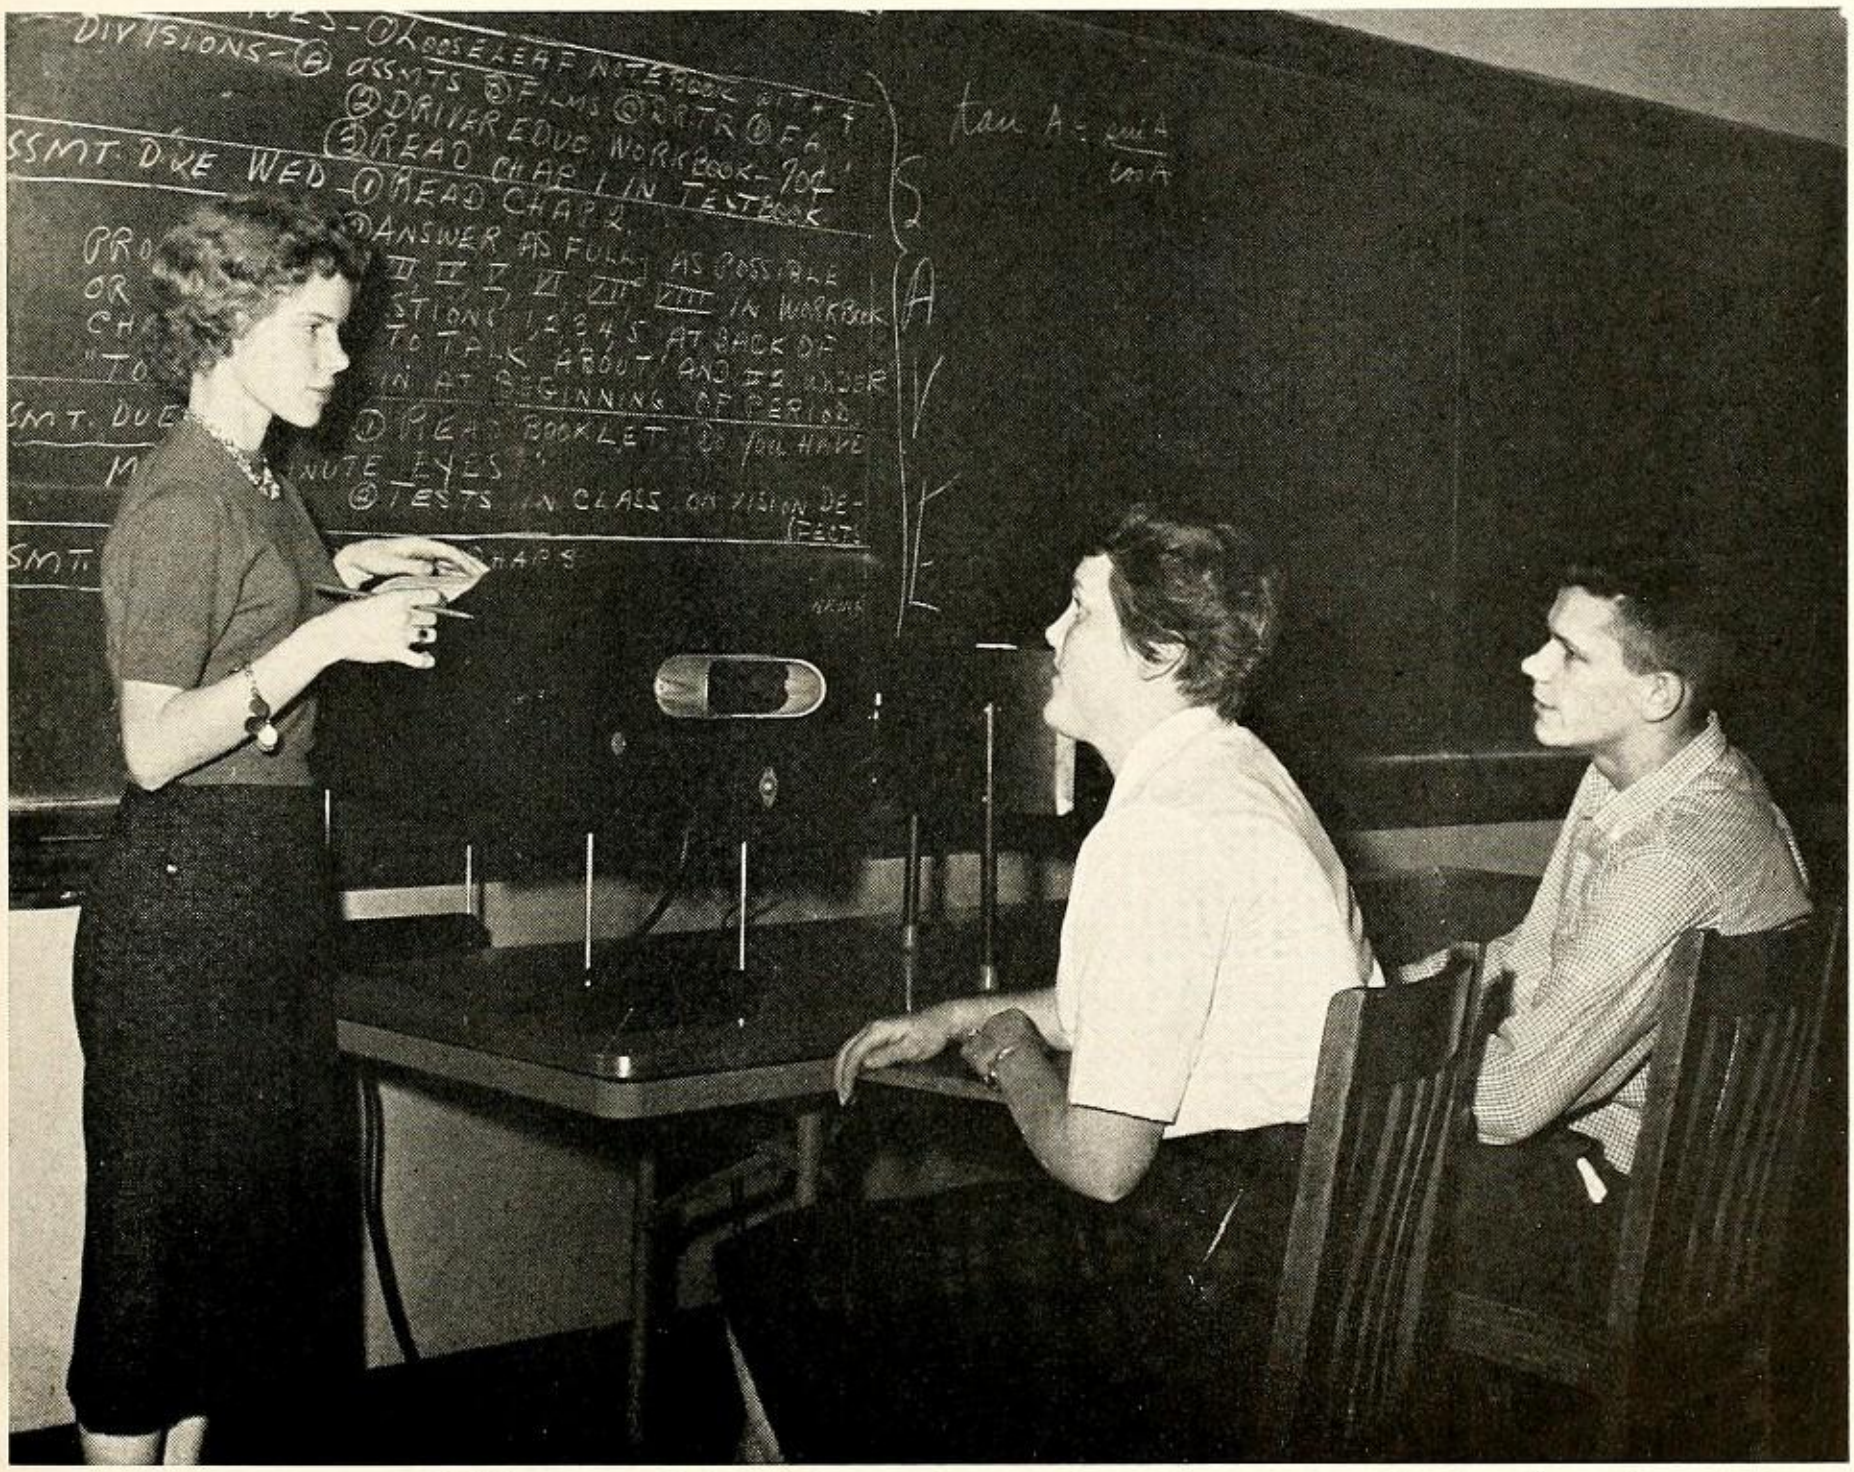
Assembling the p r o p e r equipment, Norman Rusher starts to work while Jim Swarts looks on.

Physical condition is just as important as mental ability at our Westside school. The freshman and sophomore boys play everything from indoor softball to outdoor football.

The girls participate in volleyball, tumbling, and gymnastic activities. As these students are hard at work, others prefer the comfort of the driver's education car while learning to drive.

Showing his skill on the parallel bars, Bob Clark demonstrates a forward roll to members of his gym class.

Health teaches techniques of proper living



Making use of the vision equipment, Jean Hayes tests Carolyn Catron's and Denny Dennett's eyes as part of the driver's education course.

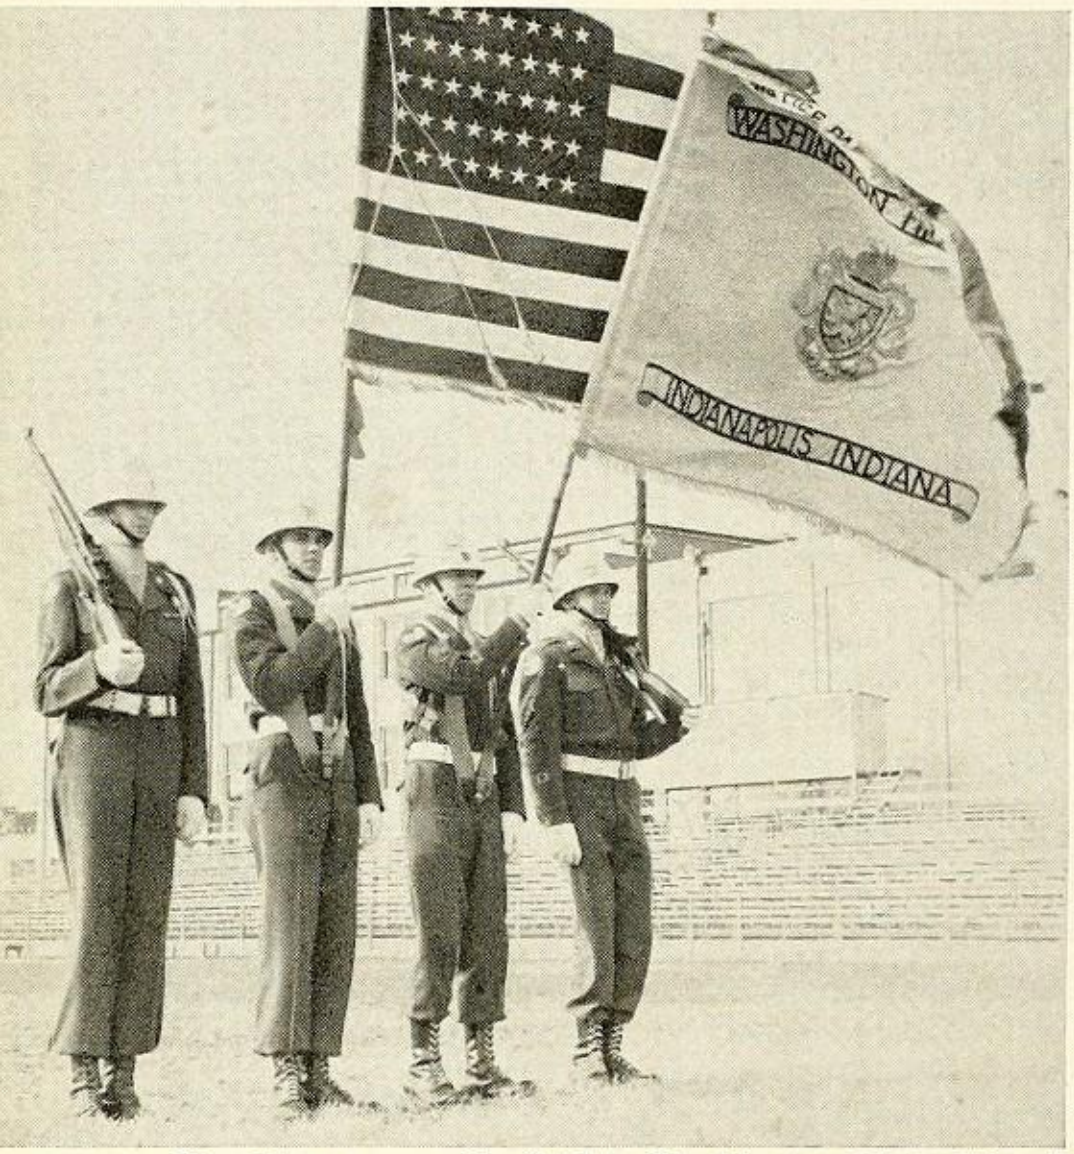
vocalists entertain school and patrons

For anyone interested in music, Washington offers many groups, both instrumental and vocal, for student participation. These groups range from a full scale orchestra to a small Rock and Roll Combo, from a huge chorus to several quartets. Whether large or small, these many groups are known all over the city for their musical abilities. They perform not only at convocations, school dances, and other school activities, but for grade schools, interested organizations, and several radio and television stations. It is doubtful, h o w e v e r , that these groups would have advanced so far without the aid and assistance of their directors, Mr. Charles Hamilton, Mr. Ray Funk, Miss Ruth Rosser, and Mrs. Ruth King.

Through constant practice, striving for perfection, these students find many hours of pleasure and gain a good musical background at Washington.

Swinging with the latest rock and roll are the Metronomes, Larry Morley, Wendell Stinson, Gene Henderson, and Duane Henry pictured with their instruments.



Marching across the field is Washington High School's color guard, consisting of Donald Bee, Carl Cambridge, Charles Cope, and Tom Rust.

Cadets today—better citizens tomorrow—our ROTC Color Guard, proudly bears the Stars and Stripes and our own school flag at both basketball and football games. Top cadets merit awards and honors and prepare themselves to serve our nation better. Sponsors march at parades, inspect cadets on Fridays, and add color and life to the cadet corps. With military procedures the farthest from their minds, cadets twirl at their annual Military Ball. Climaxing the military drilling and training, the cadets perform before the entire school, in the annual Federal Inspection where high brass officials present honors and awards to individual cadets and to corps. All of these are just phases of the ROTC program where "boys" enter and learn strategic maneuvers and military tactics and emerge "men" to serve a powerful nation.

Keeping in strict military regulations, Cadet Bill Pinkston finds a smile hard to prevent as sponsors Pam Waltz, Barbara Brown, Rita Felice, and Carolyn Lloyd inspect his uniform.

As Continentals, we create the spirit of Washington as we take PRIDE in supporting the many school sponsored clubs and other extra curricular activities. . . . These activities give us a chance to get acquainted with our teachers and fellow students. . . . The community feels a sense of PRIDE as patrons attend and take part in the various activities. . . . Freshmen gain this feeling early as they become a part of the school's program, and the sophomores take their first active part in school affairs. . . . The juniors participate in their own Jr. Vaudeville, and with PRIDE the seniors picture themselves receiving that long awaited diploma. . .

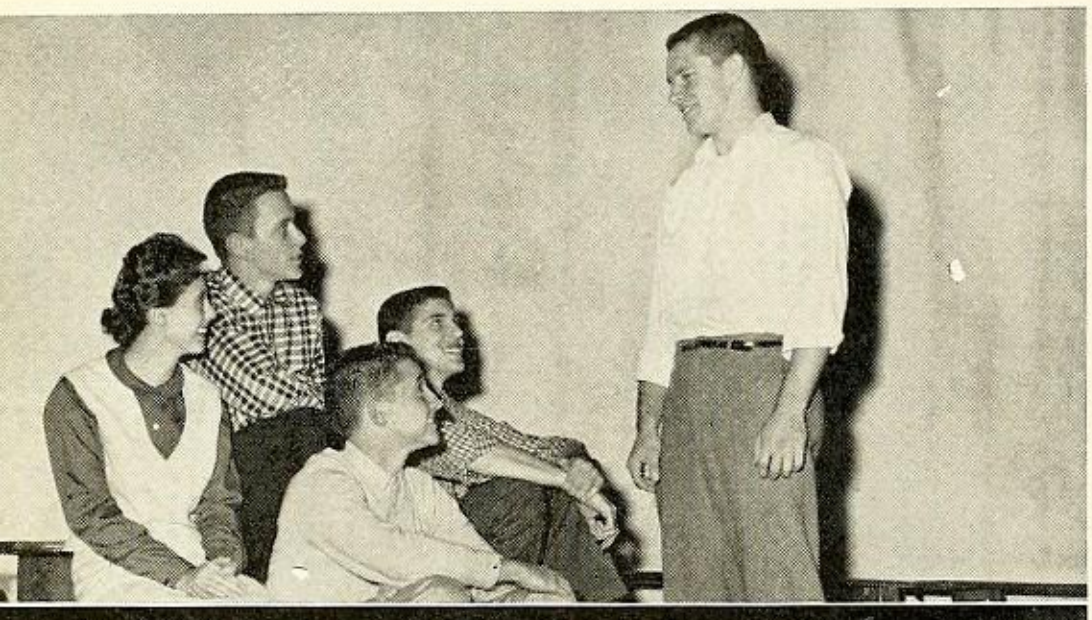
These pupils represent their roll rooms.

Representatives set Continental Code



Acting as the functioning body of our school, the Student Council consists of representatives from each roll room. The officers along with these representatives meet to plan the projects of the school year. These projects consist of selling pom poms, sponsoring sock hops, and the Clean-up Campaign. The main project of the council this year was the printing and distributing of the school code. These cards were given to the incoming freshman to acquaint them with the Continental standards of conduct.

Solving problems of the individual schools, the Intra-City Council is made up of delegates from high schools throughout the city. This council sponsors and selects a sportsmanship slogan to be used and abided by during tourney time.

INTRA-CITY COUNCIL—Larry Glaze, Intra-City president, gives advice to the other delegates. They are Maxine Kennedy, David Wright, Bill Becker, and Ken Turpin who meet with other school's delegates.

STUDENT COUNCIL OFFICERS—David Wright, president, reads the agenda of the year to the other officers. Becky Grimes is vice-president, Linda Martin, secretary; Barbara Keller, treasurer; and Fred Heinzmann, sgt.-at-arms.

Students qualify for honorary societies

The Quill and Scroll, the International Honorary for High School Journalists, boasts of its membership. Membership can be obtained through credible work on either the POST or the SURVEYOR staff. Through this organization outstanding journalism students receive the recognition they deserve.

Through constant effort and continual contributions, students qualify for the National Honor Society. This organization consists of students who have acquired outstanding achievements in connection with school spirit, good grades, and in school functions. A few of the characteristics of those who gain an honored membership in the society include integrity, self-reliance, co-operativeness, adaptability, and initative. These are qualities found in every member.

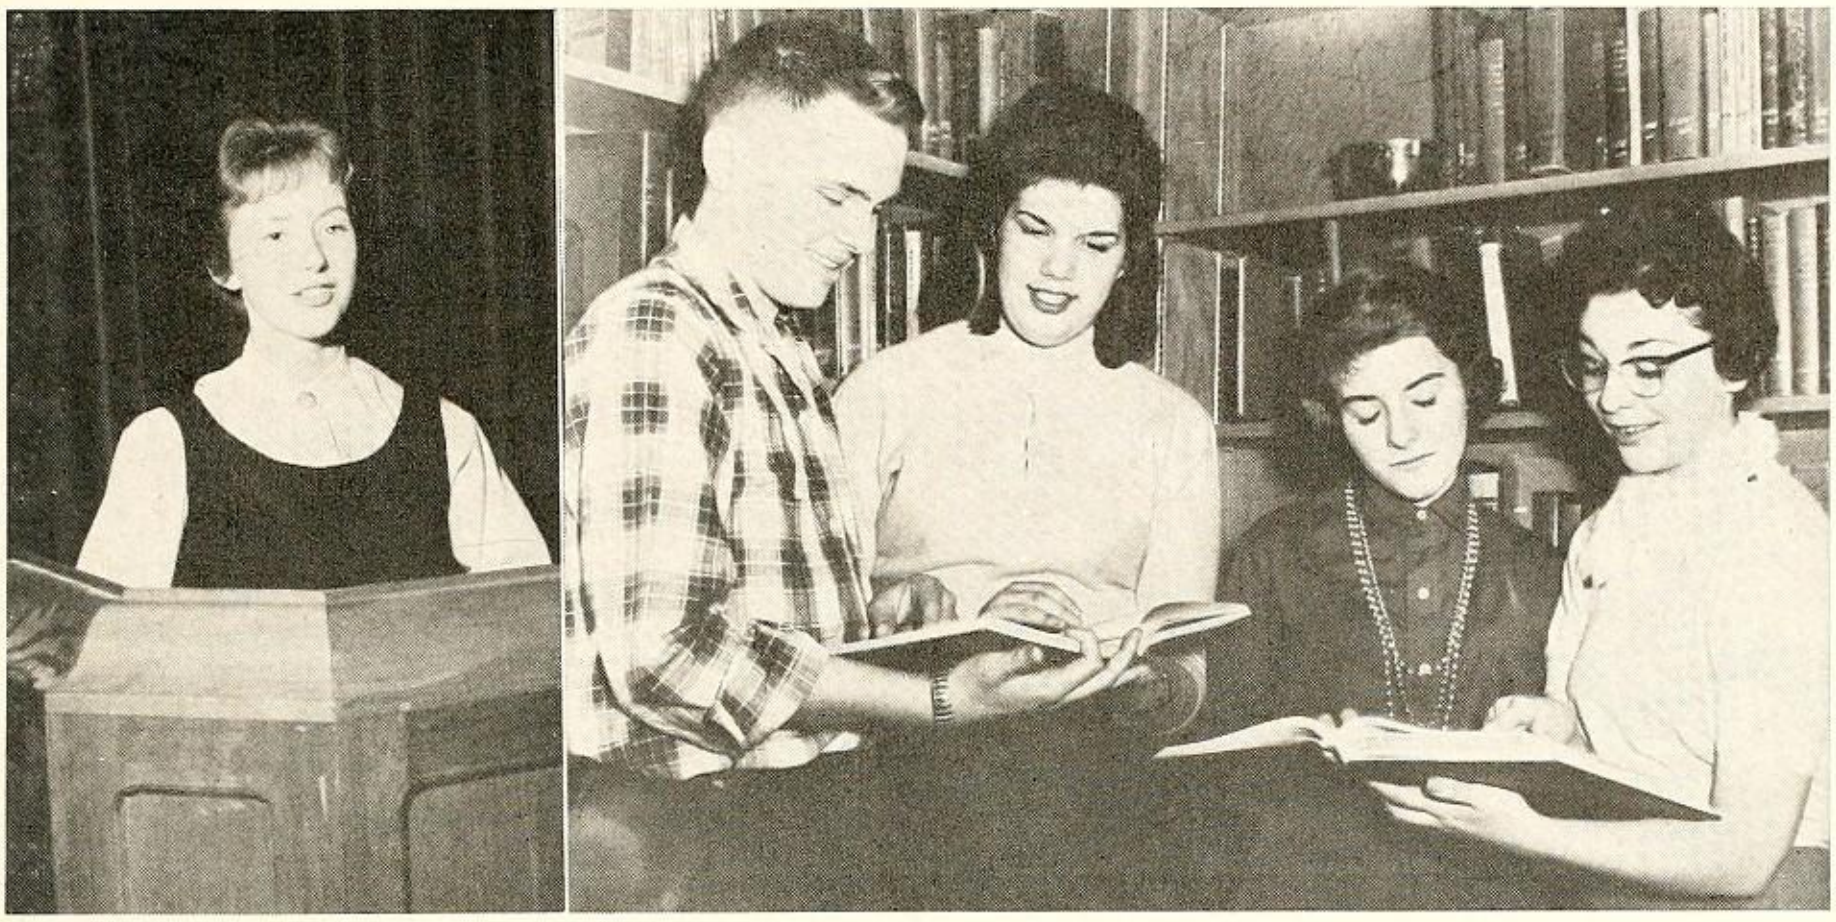
Outstanding senior girl, Linda Hefner, was chosen to receive the D. A. R. Award for her citizenship, character, and scholastic ability.

Honored pupils become travelers,

Delegates to Girls' and Boys' State, Larry Glaze, Fred Heinzmann, Larry Compton, Eddie Leet, Becky Grimes, and Linda Hefner, discuss the success of their trip.

Endeavoring to transfer the pride they have in their school, selected representatives attend various conferences throughout the entire year in various parts of the state and nation. Summer delegates to American Legion sponsored Hoosier Girls' State and Hoosier Boys' State learned about state government through participation. Later in the summer, members of the school's publications' staffs attended conferences at Ohio University, Athens Ohio, and Indiana University. These delegates returned with many awards and ideas to help improve the quality and effectiveness of the POST and THE SURVEYOR. Selection of outstanding seniors in the fall results in a trip to the United Nations and the honor of being the schools Good Citizen in the Daughters of the American Revolution annual good citizenship contest.



Linda Myers won the "I Speak for Democracy" contest and is an active speech student.

Performance, competition keen in groups

The Debate Team, under the direction of Mr. Murray Alboher, has garnered an impressive record this year. In the Annual Debate and Speech Contest this team captured several awards including a certificate in the first ten. At Ball State they had one of the highest scores in competition. This year in competition with other schools they won more than half of their matches in debate.

The Dramatics Club headed by Mrs. Catherine Lord presents programs for the students during the school year. This year they presented the Christmas Story and the Senior Class Play. Participation in the Dramatics Club gives an insight to the various phases involved in presenting a successful play. Make-up, costumes, and publicity are just a few of the things necessary to make a play successful.

WASHINGTONIANS—Officers are Charlene Houchins, Norma Archer, Linda Martin, and Carol Christie.

Senior girls form the Washingtonians to assist and guide freshman girls with problems that occur during their first year of school. This organization annually sponsors the Big Sister party to acquaint freshmen with senior girls.

Students planning to become teachers learn the basic fundamentals of teaching in the Future Teachers of America Club. Through speakers, films, and trips, students learn what to expect if they select teaching as a career.

A representative from each roll room is elected to take part in the activities of the Junior Red Cross. These activities include filling Christmas stockings, packing gift boxes for charitable instutitions, and sending packages overseas. Delegates are also selected from each high school for the downtown chapter.

Sponsored by the history department, the Junto Club makes field trips to historical places and gains a general knowledge of history. Through these trips and activities, history comes to life and takes on new meaning. The members of the Junto Club believe that a better understanding of the past promotes a better understanding of the future. During the year this club sponsored a contest to select an appropriate inscription for the marker commemorating Anthony Wayne for whom our township was named.

Latin students, wishing to widen their knowledge of the language, take an active part in the Latin Club. Each year the language department sponsors the Roman Banquet patterned after those the Romans enjoyed. Sending gifts abroad is only one of the many activities of this organization. The students are greatly rewarded for their deeds when they receive thank you notes written in a foreign language.

Heading the POST Staff, Assistant Editor Linda Bainaka and Business Manager Linda Kinley discuss the yearbook problems with Editor Becky Grimes.

Contributing time and effort to the planning of a good yearbook is the responsibility of each pupil on the POST staff. Working together, students find deadlines less difficult to meet and have an opportunity to cultivate ideas. Developing the theme of the yearbook in order to express an idea can be difficult as well as challenging. Each challenge must be met and conquered by the members of the POST staff. Pride must excel within the pupil in order to inspire him to write in an informative and sincere manner. Writers, photographers, artists, and editors dutifully preform their tasks and display their talents in completing the '60 POST. Combining the abilities of each member, the staff desires to inform the students of school activities, aid in the making of a good Senior POST which will long be cherished.

SURVEYOR meets deadlines, covers news

Working hard to bring the student body up-to-date, on-the-spot news, the Surveyor staff is kept busy, preforming the various duties that accompany the editing and publishing of a large-scale newspaper. Members of the staff work hard, not only during the school day, but also before and after school to put out a worthwhile publication. By their own creativeness in make-up, news coverage, sports, editorials, and features, The Surveyor has earned an All-American Honor rating from the National Scholastic Press Association for the third consecutive semester. Linda Hefner holds the position of Editor-in-Chief, while Rita Felice serves as assistant editor. Miss Mary Benedict acts as publications adviser and sponsor. Mid-term additions to the staff were Denny Dennett, Pat Pritchett, Ronnie Slater, Kenny Turpin, Brenda Williams, and John Willoughby.

Snapping pictures and developing film are a few of the duties of photographers Russell Young and Larry James.

Keeping Washington in the news is the reponsibility of the News Bureau Staff. Active Continentals constantly preform newsworthy feats, indulge in interesting hobbies, and otherwise merit recognition for accomplished feats.

To inform the public about the accomplishments of Washington students, the News Bureau is organized. Members collect, write, and report news to newspapers throughout the community and the city each week. In this way, persons outside the school can easily learn of school activities and the modern teenager.

News of the younger generation is as nearby as their evening paper. Articles may be found in the Indianapolis Star and News, Times, and the Teen Star. Neighborhood publications include The Messenger, the Northwest Press, the Western Sun, and the Enterprise.

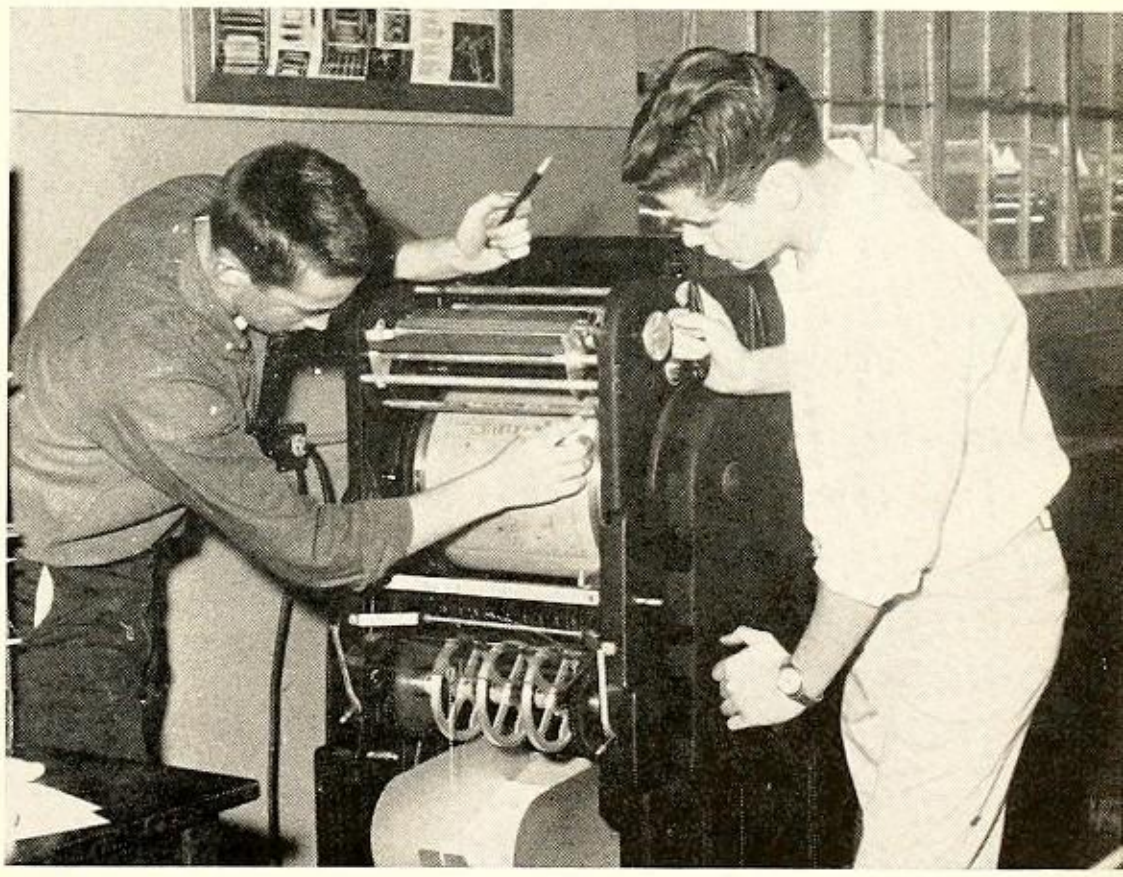
Reporters inform community

Informing the community of school affairs are members of the News Bureau Ron Ellis, Joyce Gill, Nancy Orr, Linda Hefner, and Kenny Turpin, standing; Carolyn Catron, Rebecca Cordova, Rita Felice, and Judy Hamm, typing.

Setting type for THE SURVEYOR are Robert Beyerlein, Victor Kraning, and David Stanfield. One of the print shop jobs is to keep the press in working order.

Shop training aids publications

Continental print shop students can be proud of the fact that they print both THE POST and THE SURVEYOR. This year the students can boast new equipment and the only book in Indianapolis that is composed and printed completely by students. Besides printing the yearbook and a bi-weekly paper, the print shop also prints tickets, student passes, and all other official school material. Instructing these pupils are Mr. Walter Mendel and Mr. Michael Barrett. This year the print shop received new equipment for a very popular type of reproduction called offset printing. With this offset printing method, work was made easier and completed faster. Adding this new method of setting type and printing, our printers can now boast of a complete print shop.



Double checking type before they do the work of putting out valuable information to over 2,000 Continentals, Bill Pinkard and Duane Henry prepare to print.

Students elect guys and gals to reign

Queens serve Washington from September to June. The Jamboree Queen is chosen to reign at the annual Football Jamboree by members of the football team. As the months go by, the student body elects a queen, who is crowned during the half time of the Homecoming football game. To climax the yearbook sales, Johnnie and Connie Continental are chosen as typical teens. A Princess of Light, chosen by the seniors, represents Washington in the downtown festivities. The cindermen choose a queen to reign at home track meets. The Clean-Up Queen reigns during the Clean Up Campaign. As June approaches, a May Queen, nominated by the student body, reigns over the Awards' day ceremony.

Queen Becky waves a friendly hello as she is escourted around the track by Wayne Whiffing and Mayor Charles Boswell at the Homecoming game.

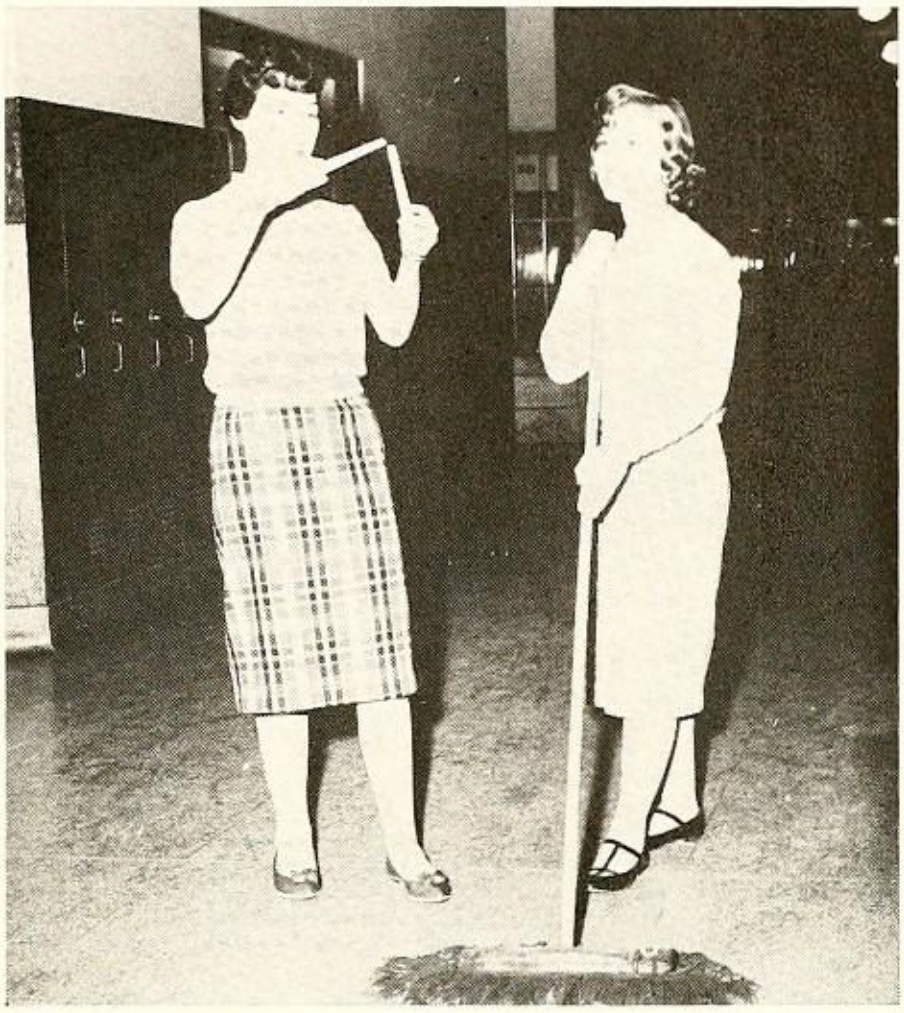
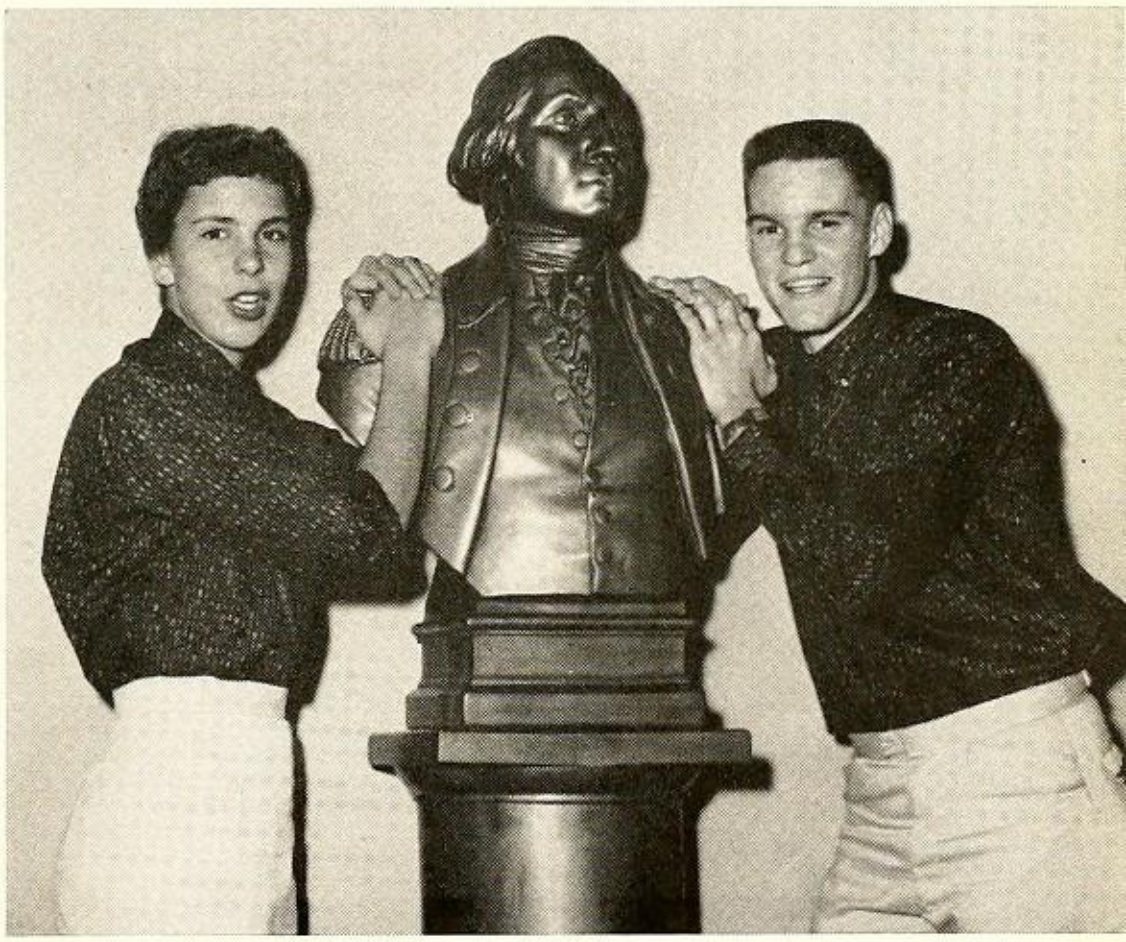
Presenting awards to winning trackmen is the duty of Jo Marie VanBlaricum, track queen. Members of her court include Maxine Kennedy, Louise Swarts, Tessa Trusty, and Judi Olson.



Demonstrating their ability to live up to their respective titles are Princess of Light Pat Bowman and Clean-up Queen Brenda Kemp.



At the conclusion of the yearbook sales campaign Linda Hefner and Larry Compton were chosen as Washington's typical teens.

As active athletes, Continentals have shown their PRIDE by bringing many victories to Washington. . . . These victories brought recognition not only to Washington but to the many athletes who made them possible. . . . Taylor, D. Hazelwood, J. Thompson, S. Moorefield; row 4: R. Mitchell, manager, B. Hattiex, J. Purichia, F. Johnson, D. Shepard, and N. Donovan. This '59 team is the only undefeated squad in Washington's 33-year history.

Closing the '59 football season in a flash, the gridders conquered previously undefeated Howe 33-0 in one of the city's biggest upsets. The record book showed seven other wins as Nobles-ville, Manual, Shortridge, Scecina, Broad Rip-ple, Ben Davis, and Anderson fell. A tie with an inspired Sacred Heart was the only blemish on the books that kept the gridders from grabbing the mythical city championship. Even though the city championship was not captured, the '59 team will go down in history as the only unde-feated squad in Washington's 33-year history. Adding to the gridiron glory, four scrapping players were chosen to the all-city team. Those achieving this honor were Halfback Ken Corey, End Larry Glaze, Quarterback Charles Prince, and Guard Bernie Wainscott. Bringing still fur-ther glory to the fighting eleven, Joe Tofil was named as all-city coach of the year.

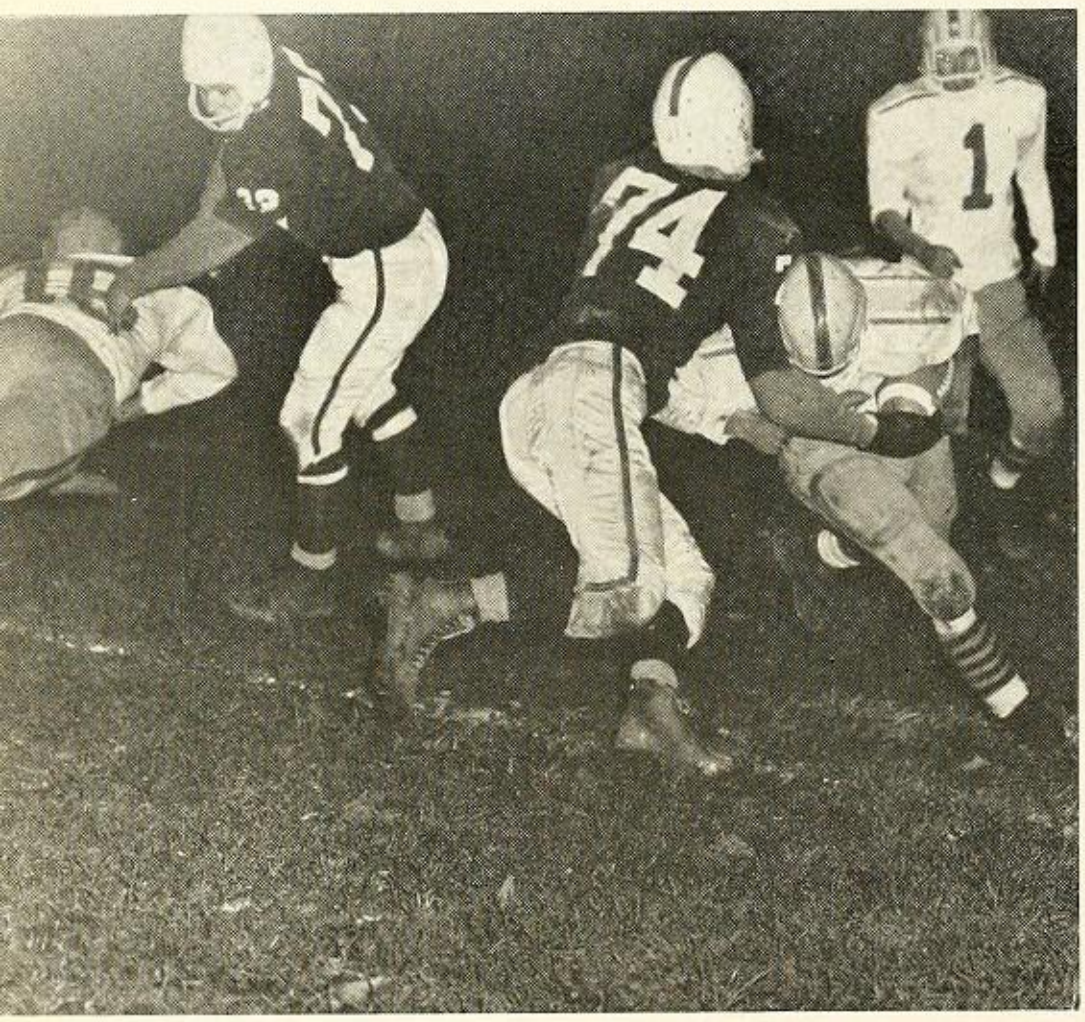
Reserves prepare for varsity action



Getting his man, Charles Prince (74) makes sure that a would be scorer is kept from his goal. Marion Baker (73) also puts his man out of commission.

Spirited reserve gridders attained valuable experience for varsity competition by finishing their 1959 season with an even 4-4 record. Sparked by the coaching of Dick Harmening, the B-team gridders scalped Manual, rocked Ripple, stung Howe, and cut the Giants down to size but couldn't bolster up enough steam to pass by Tech, Scecina, Cathedral, and Shortridge. The reserve gridders will provide some outstanding material for the 1960 varsity team. Under the guidance of coaches John Williams and Frank Hamilton, the freshman gridders finished their season with a 5-4 record. Fighting hard all the way, the frosh downed Manual, Shortridge, Broad Ripple, Ben Davis, and Tech. The little purple spent hours of practice, patience, and preparation for their big games. Many of the boys will return next year to strengthen the reserve and varsity teams.

Hoosier Hysteria hit Washington hard, sending Continental fans and students bouncing into the hardwood realm. Coach Dave Hine and two returning starters lead the way to a winning 10-9 season over some of the county's best teams. But fans were really thrilled when they saw the Hinemen upset Cathedral 71-69 and highly ranked Crawfordsville 81-70. As sectional time rolled around, Washington was matched with Broad Ripple, a ten-point loser to the Continentals in regular season play, after a first game bye. The hoopmen fought hard, but dropped a heartbreaker to Ripple 67-53. Another disappointment was suffered by Washington as Dave Hine, varsity coach for twelve years, announced his retirement. Jerry Oliver will fill this vacancy left by Coach Hine.

FRESHMAN PLAYERS—Row 1: J. Fultz, L. Cannon, C. Dickerson, J. Sanders, R. Smith; row 2: Russell McConnell, coach, A. Derringer, R. Bryant, G. Marlow, R. Harrington, C. Ellis, M. Durham, and P. Marlow.

Washington's reserve hoopsters kept up the pride of the Westside school by ending a winning 14-4 season. Lead by coach Jerry Oliver, the B-team showed that Washington's varsity team will be one of the best next year. Washington out shot rivals Howe, Zionsville, Lawrence, Shortridge, Tech, Wood, and Franklin. Also defeated by the reserves were Sacred Heart, Manual, Broad Ripple, Speedway, Ben Davis, North Central, and Decatur Central.

The freshman hoopsters compiled a 13-5 record this season in tough city-county competition. Under the direction of Russell McConnell, the little purple trounced Broad Ripple, Speedway, Attucks, Cathedral, Manual, and Scecina before dropping thrillers to Wood and Ben Davis. In the city tourney, the freshmen were victorious over Shortridge but lost to an inspired Tech team. Howe, Broad Ripple, Warren, Tech, and Southport fell beneath the Continental hatchet.

Tracksters plowed through their dual meets in exacting form. The Haynesmen ran over Cathedarl, Columbus, and Attucks inseason openers and copped a 15 inch trophy in the Ben Davis Relays where five teams participated. Wood and Scecina were turned back as the Continentals scored $62\frac{1}{2}$, to Wood's $55\frac{1}{3}$, and Scecina's $18\frac{1}{6}$. The '60 squad was led by juniors Ken Corey and Jim Loviscek. Ken holds the City Meet pole vault record at 12′4″ and is unbeaten. In addition, some outstanding distances in the field events were set: Stan Callaway, 11′6″ in the pole vault; Frank Johnson, 48′3″ in the shot put and $20'\frac{1}{2}''$ in the broad jump; and Jim Loviscek, $5'11\frac{3}{4}''$ in the high jump. The reserves won many meets and freshwere undefeated when the POST went to press.

During the Columbus meet, sophomore Mike Guffin boosted the cindermen's score by breaking the string and capturing first place in the half mile event.

Which athletic events take more time and effort toward hard work and weight control? Which athletic event requires more muscles and brains? You guessed it, wrestling, of course. This year the mighty grapplers, under the coaching of John Williams and assistant coach Frank Hamilton, grabbed an 8-6 record in dual meets. The wrestlers also placed fourth in the city and showed great strength in the sectionals. Washington had three Sectional Champs, Russel Young, Reggie Opp, and Jim Dill. Reggie placed second in state competition. The best performances put on by the wrestlers this year were at the Decatur Central and West Lafayette meets, defeating them 48 to 8, and 44 to 8, respectively. Wood and Manual defeated the grapplers by only two points. Cathedral, Sacred Heart, Howe, Tech, Scecina, and University of Bloomington were the other teams who fell under the grip of the matmen. Washington reserves downed many city competitors and the freshmen were the city's second best.

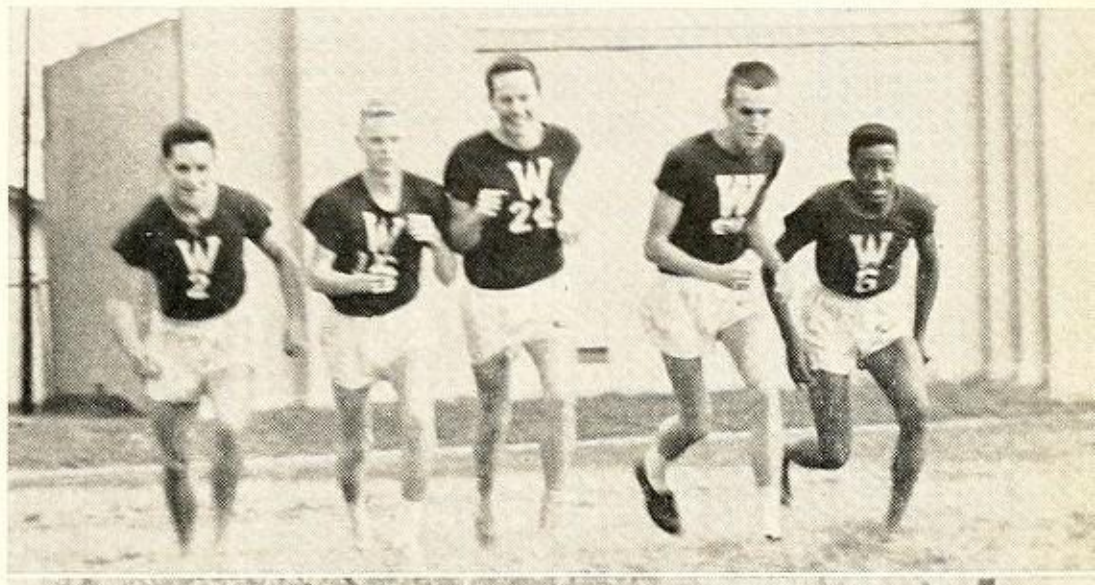
Harriers cop sectional first

Although the state title eluded the Continental "hill and dalers," they ran to a sectional championship over twenty-four other varsity squads, and at mid-season captured second place in the highly competitive city meet. The squad, coached by Thomas Haynes, consisted of seniors, Carl Frodge, David Jones, and Bill Cloud. It was paced by sophomore sensation Dan Jaquess, who was followed closely by juniors, Jim Loviscek, Terry Caldwell, and sophomore Ernest Stennis. The best time for the two mile course was turned in by Dan Jaquess with a 10:20, which places him number five among the all-time standings at Washington. The Haynesmen will be looking eagerly to next year with four returning lettermen to bolster spirits and lead the way to another sectional championship, with a hint that the state title won't be out of reach.



Bringing a victory, Clifford Caldwell, Dan Jaquess, Carl Frodge, Jim Loviscek, and Ernest Stennis were the first five Washington finishers in the sectional.

Freshman "hill and dalers," James Ward, Stanley Bevely, Clifford Artis, and Leroy Chowning gained valuable experience for varsity competition next year.

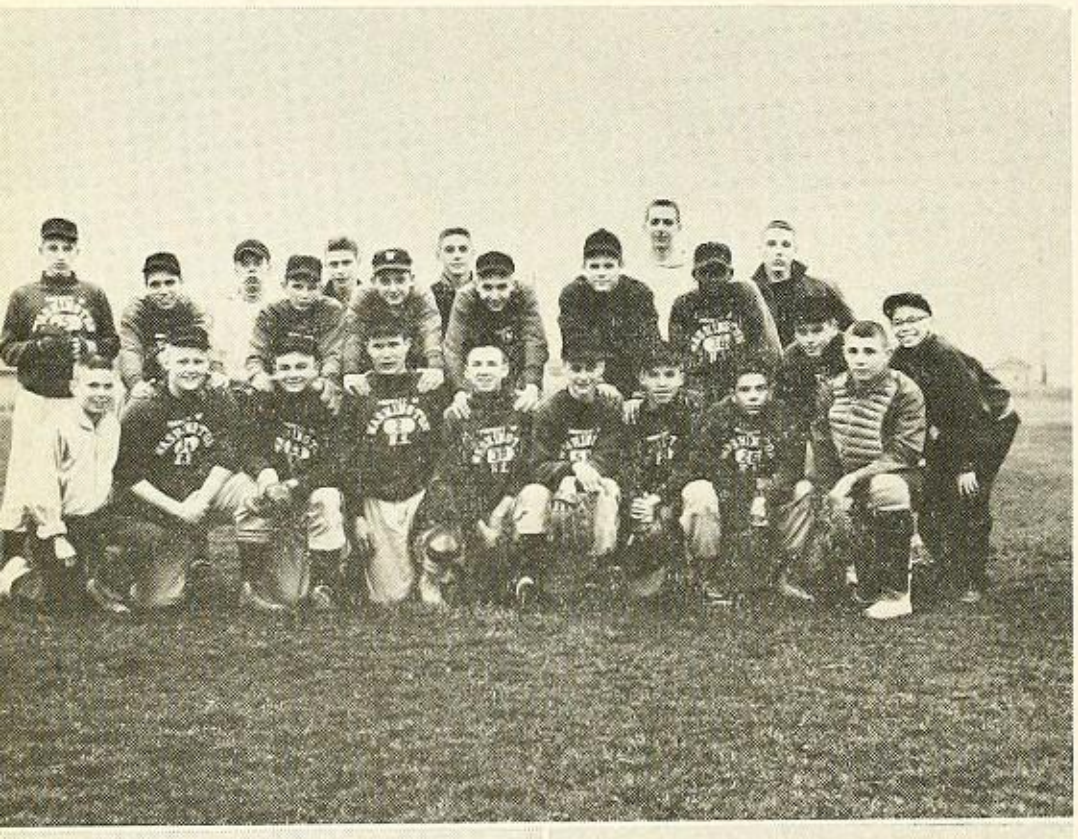
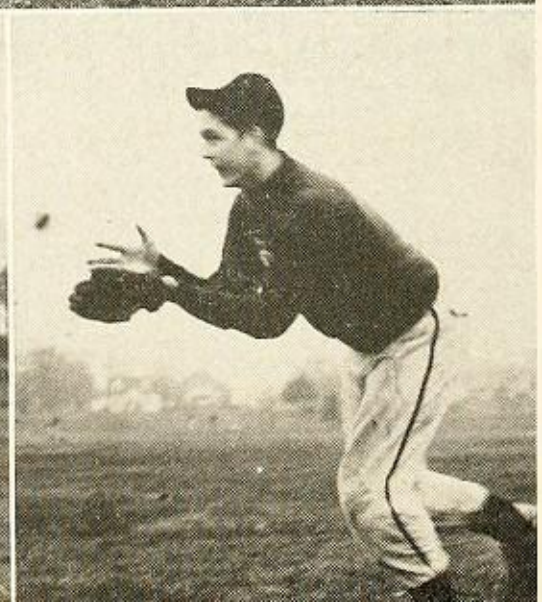
Diamondmen face twenty-one foes



Washington's varsity baseball team, coached by Frank Luzar, started off the season by outhitting Columbus 7-6, Shelbyville 4-3, and Sacred Heart 3-2. Diamondmen also downed Warren Central 5-3 in a twelve-inning thriller. Manual fell to the hands of the baseball team by a 8-0 score. Sixteen boys remain on the squad from the original thirty hopefuls. Half of these boys are seniors. Joe Tofil's reserves followed up the varsity by whipping Ben Davis, Columbus, and Shelbyville to start the season. Freshmen and sophomore boys making up most of this team promise to bring Washington a winning season for the next three years.

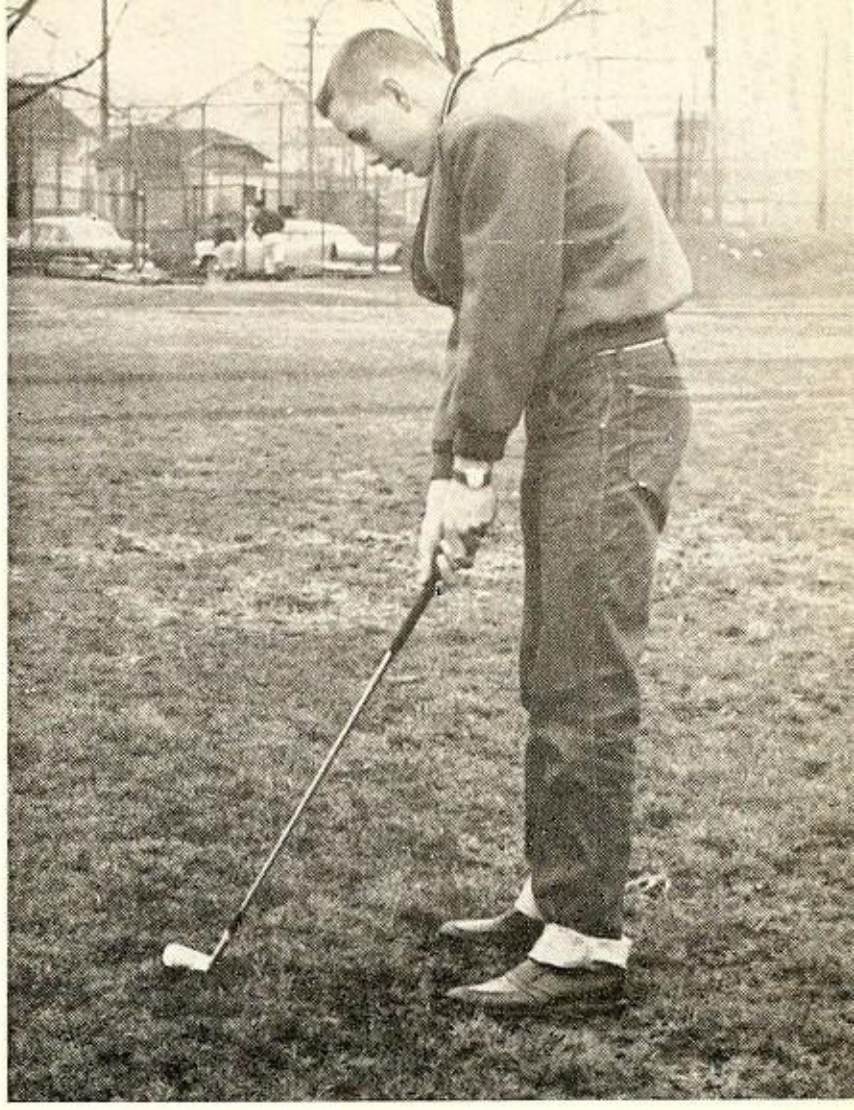
RESERVE BASEBALL—Row 1: D. Moss, J. Arvin, R. Ballard, J. Sanders, B. Reamer, L. Moneymaker, J. Gilliam, S. Neff, R. Payne; row 2: F. Komlance, L. Shotts, B. McElyea, B. Bryant, W. Dafoe, R. Caudell, G. Sipe, C. Dickerson, S. Krueger, M. Eller, T. Giles, P. Strong, and manager B. Leet.



With a loud crack of the bat, Larry Glaze sends the "old horsehide" sailing with hopes of a home run, but Lonnie McClellan steps in with a good catch.

Golfers battle fourteen opponents

Washington's golf hopes were high for the season as it was proved in the Fall County Meet. Coached by Mr. Dave Hine, the linksmen copped the fall meet on their home course, Riverside, with a low total of 308. Knobel paced the team with a one over par 73 to win low medalist for the event. In a six-way meet at Bloomington's I.U. course, the Continentals downed four opponents but lost to University High School to secure second place. The turfsters captured a three-way meet title, downing city rivals Cathedral and Scecina. Hine's "hackers" walked over Tech, Howe, Manual, Lawrence Central, and Ben Davis on early engagements of the season. In the Spring County Meet, our golfers placed fourth with a 321 total. Accounting for the score was Jim Knobel with a 73; Bill Becker, 80; Denny Dennett, 81; and Bob Clark, 83. In other meets Washington downed Southport, Carmel, and Lawrence Central.



Preparing to tee-off, sophomore Jim Knobel demonstrates perfect form while practicing for a coming match.

At Washington, the Continental girls enjoy the extra-curricular activities offered by Continental Girls' Athletic Association. This organization is an active member of the Indiana League of High School Girls' Athletic Association and is made up of girls working to advance their physical education ability. While obtaining this goal, the girls also learn to work and play with others and to maintain a feeling of sportsmanship at all times. Constantly striving to reach the goal set up by the Indiana league, the girls work for points which will enable them to attain the state award and plaque. Local awards, numerals and letters, precede the state award in regard to requirements. The league sponsors various activities which include sports clinics, camps, and playdays.

"W" men, cheerleaders boost school spirit

This year members of the active Lettermen's Club sponsored the faculty Intra-mural tilt and also served as ushers during the basketball season. Jerry Oliver, sponsor, is assisted by Larry Glaze, president; Kenny Corey, vice-president; Larry Compton, treasurer; and Jim Dill, sgt.-at-arms. Each member must have earned a varsity letter and uphold the tradition of the club. Active Continental cheerleaders did much to promote school spirit and sportsmanship at pep-sessions and athletic events during the year. Under the direction of Mrs. Rosemary Winters, sponsor, and Linda Martin, captain, the squad led the student body to spark the team toward victory. The cheerleaders are elected in the spring and serve through the football and basketball seasons.

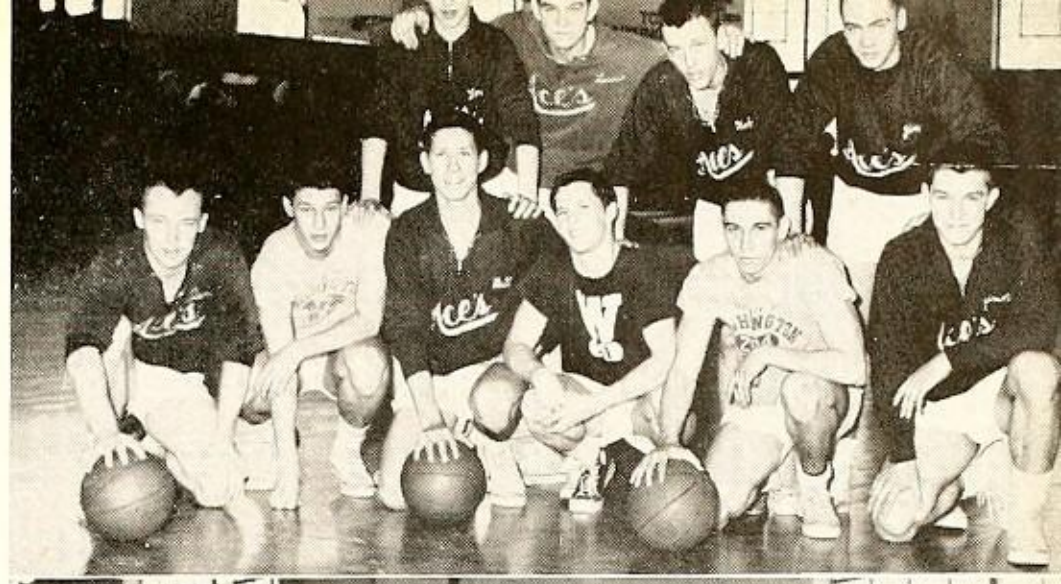
Beginning bowlers poodle, dribble, strike

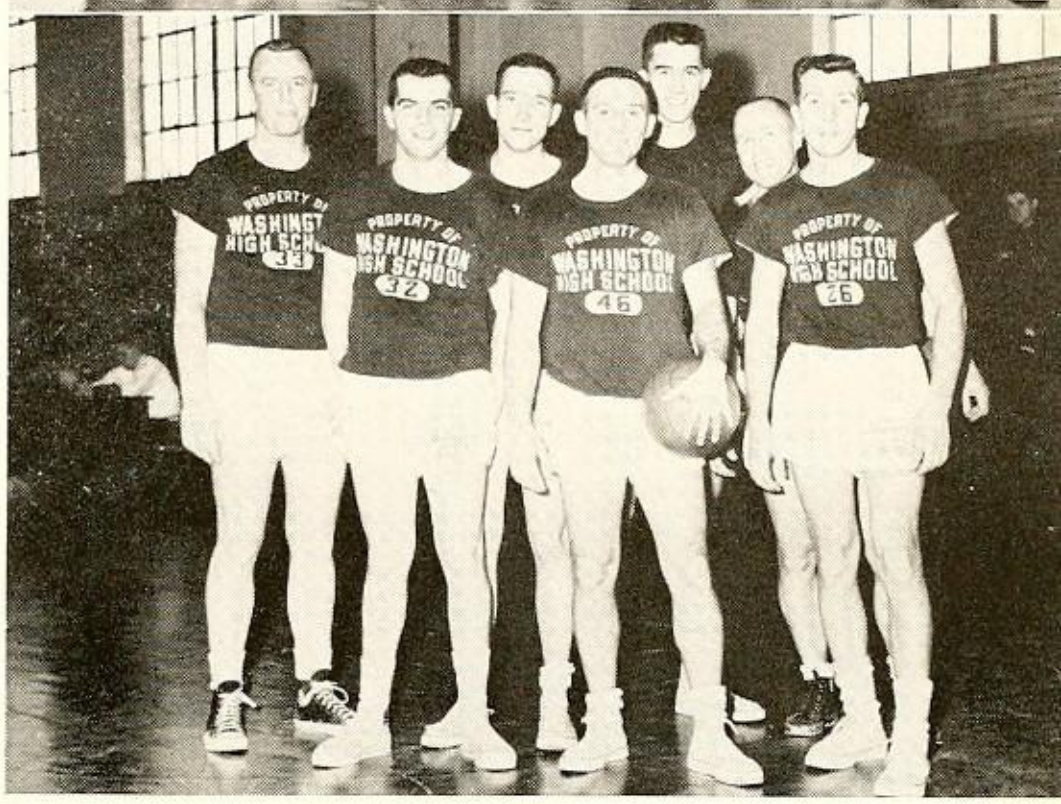
Many new ideas have been added to the school by Physical Education Instructor, Mrs. Burdeen Schmidt. Under her supervision an intramural bowling league was organized at the Westside Bowling Alley. This idea became popular so fast that all alleys were filled on both Monday and Tuesday nights. At the beginning of the season strikes were few and far between, but as the season advanced they became more common. A tremendous cheer was given to each and every person as he finally accomplished the impossible—making a strike. The bowling alley was not only filled with the roar of the bowling ball but also with chatter and laughter from all. Good sportsmanship was expressed and every team was a winner in this respect.

Bowling champs Barbara Keller, Pat Pritchett, Karen Turner, Brenda Williams, and Linda Myers ranked high in the girls intramural bowling league.

Intramural champs battle faculty five

Every Thursday night throughout the hoop season, various shouts and noises break the quiet of the empty gym as the intramural teams take the floor. Led by Larry Glaze, Bill Cloud, Tom Lochkovic, and David Wright, the Ozarks blasted their way through the evenly matched league with a 9-1 record. They were only beaten by the second place Guns. The teams finished in the following order; Ozarks, Guns, Bruins, Stars, Lakers, and Comets. At the end of the net season the high school stars of yesteryear dusted off their sneakers and took the floor against the intramural league winners to defend the honor of the Washington teachers. But all the Champ's hopes were in vain as the teachers overtook and thrashed them 55-40. The teachers added another victory to their string of those yearly faculty frolics.

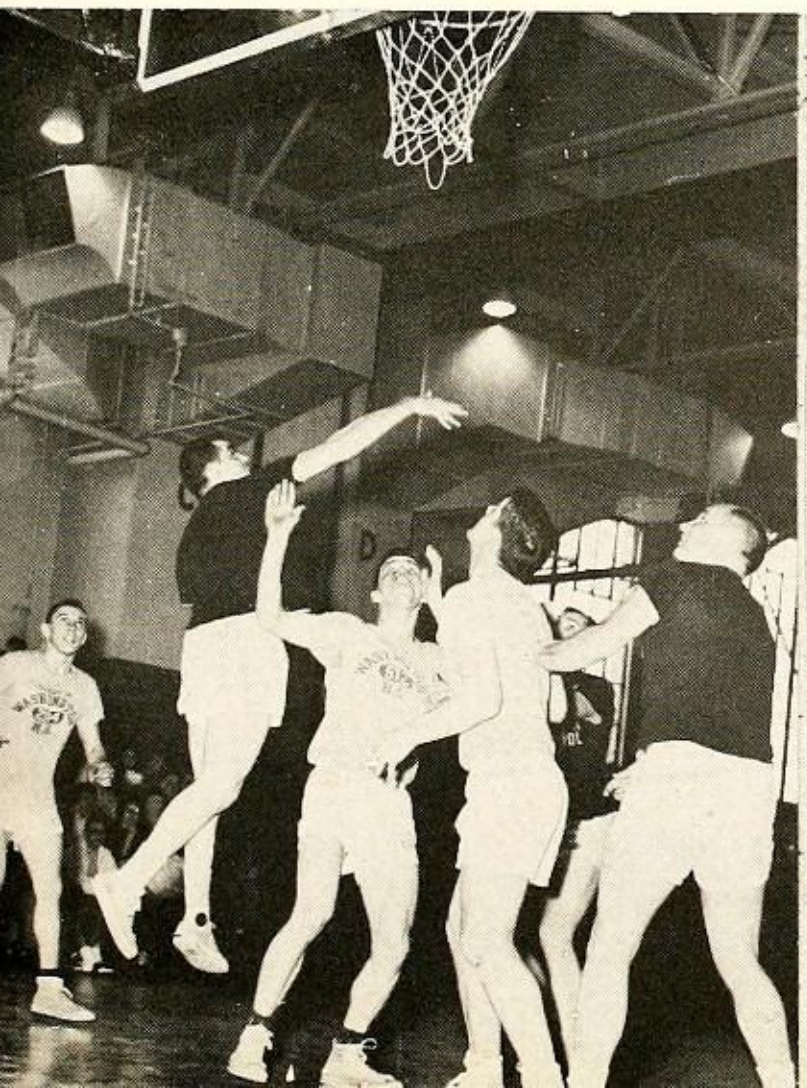




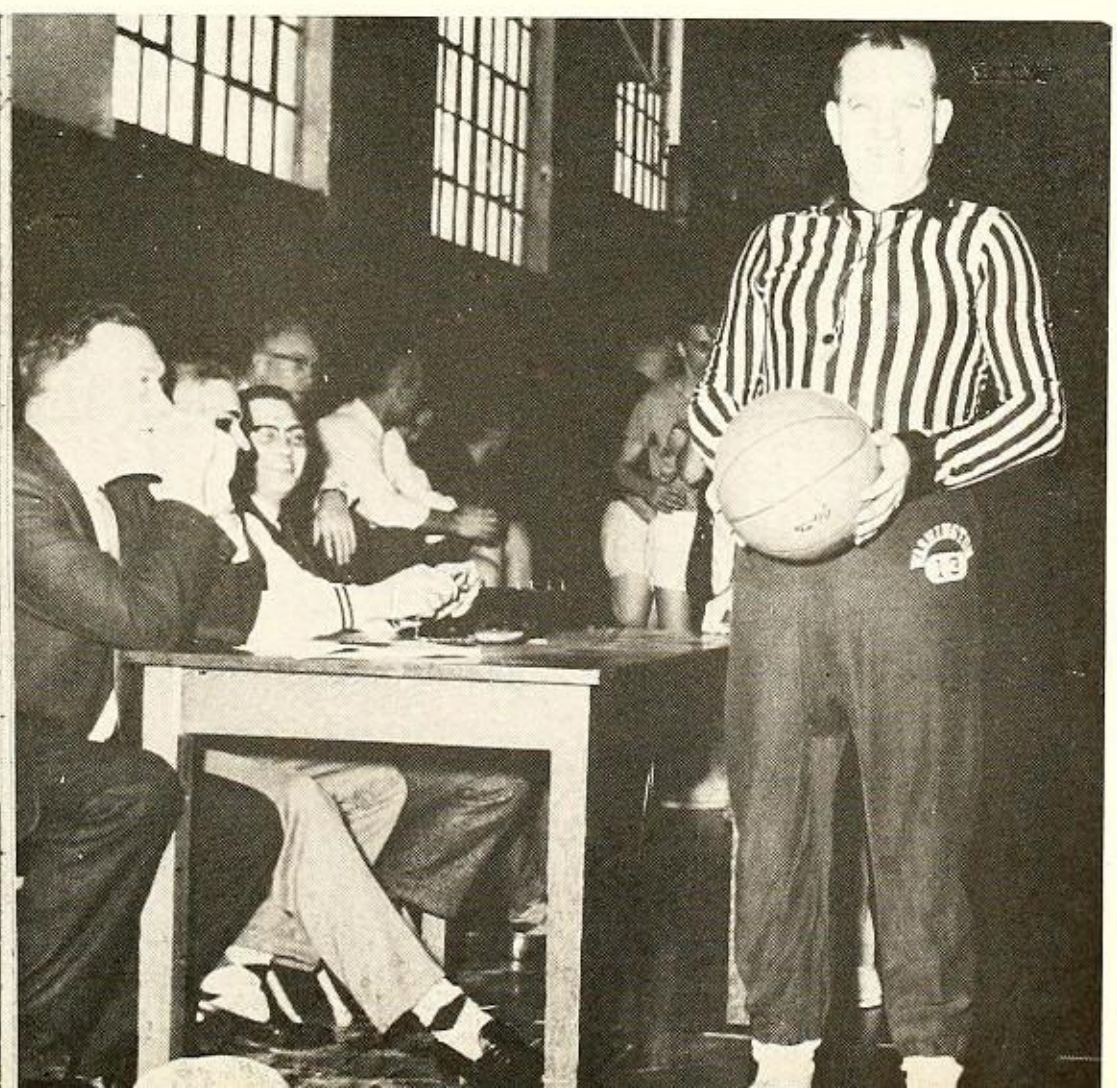
Members of the Ozarks, intramural champs are D. Hoffa, D. Lawson, B. Cloud, K. Wright, T. Lochkovic, L. Glaze, L. Moneymaker, L. McClellan, D. Wright, and J. Blankenship.

Team members of the Faculty squad are Herschel Ross, Kenneth Schuster, Alan Hamilton, Jerry Oliver, Shannan Jones, Frank Hamilton, and Robert Mirkovich.

Bibbity-Bobbity-Boo! With a ballet leap and a wave of his hand, Kenneth Schuster seems to be putting a spell over David Wright and Lonnie McClellan.



Demonstrating his skill, Cloyd "Swish" Julian refereed the game and also provided spectators with an interesting halftime show.



In Continentaland, we take PRIDE in cultivating lasting friendships with fellow students... As freshmen, we enter warily into a new and different world...Achieving sophomore statis, our interests now broaden as we take an ever increasing part in school activities...As juniors we display with PRIDE our new class rings and we begin to realize the responsibilities which lie ahead...Upon becoming seniors we eagerly await the day when we will receive our diplomas...Lasting friendships cultivated throughout our high school career are carried over with PRIDE as we take our place in society...

Pardon our Pride...

Signing yearbooks for underclassmen Jim Barnaby, Kenny Drake, and Donna White are seniors Ronnie Ellis and Hazel White.

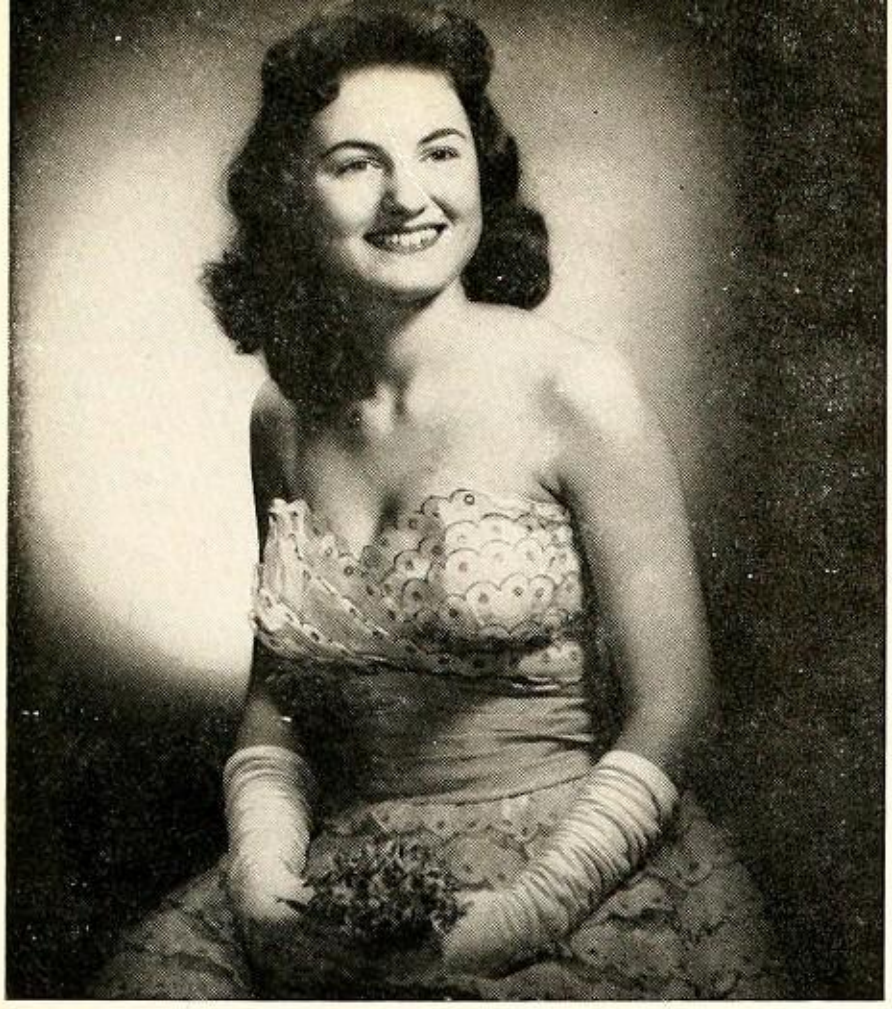
Seniors display spirit, sportsmanship

At the start of the fall semester, initiative, spirit, and pride grew in the hearts of all seniors. The spirited feeling and enthusiasm which the '60 Senior Class possessed throughout the year made it a class of distinction. Accomplishments and outstanding achievements were part of the actions which the seniors displayed. Good sportsmanship reigned not only with undefeated football players but also in the classroom. This quality of fair play was revealed during the election of class officers and was maintained throughout the year. With this spirit and pride in mind, the class strived to become a unit. As the diplomas are received by the seniors, many memories of the wonderful four years will be recalled.

Cast in the leading roles of the senior class play, "Father of the Bride", were Rebecca Cordova, the blushing bride, and Marion Suddith, the typical father.



Each year a May Queen and her attendants reign over the Award's Day festivities during a double convocation where they present awards to outstanding students. Climaxing the day's festivities is the crowning of the queen during an all-school convocation. Scholarships and major awards are presented at this time.

May Queen Linda Martin reigned over the festivities of Award's Day and distributed awards to outstanding students in their respective classes.

Queen, Court reign at June Awards Day

Surrounding May Queen Linda Martin are members of her court, Charlene Houchins, Carolyn Lloyd, Becky Grimes, Hazel White, Rita Felice, and Barbara Keller.

Focusing their eyes on the only girl officer of the Junior Class, Mary Ann Martin, are Ronnie Slater, Randy White, Ken Corey, Jim Loviscek, and Dave Shepard.

The Junior Class starts early in the year making its plans. In the spring of the preceeding year members elect class officers and are ready to start an adventuresome year in the fall. Our officers consult with sponsors Guy Mahan, Robert Badgely and Suzanne Keck on class business. One of the main events during the year is the arrival of the class rings and as always every junior feels he has selected the prettiest. The two main projects of the year are the Junior Vaudeville and the Junior Prom. The theme of the Prom this year was the "Gay Sixties". Couples whirled under a revolving crystal to the music of Nick Craig and his orchestra.

Class rings, Prom, and Vaudeville

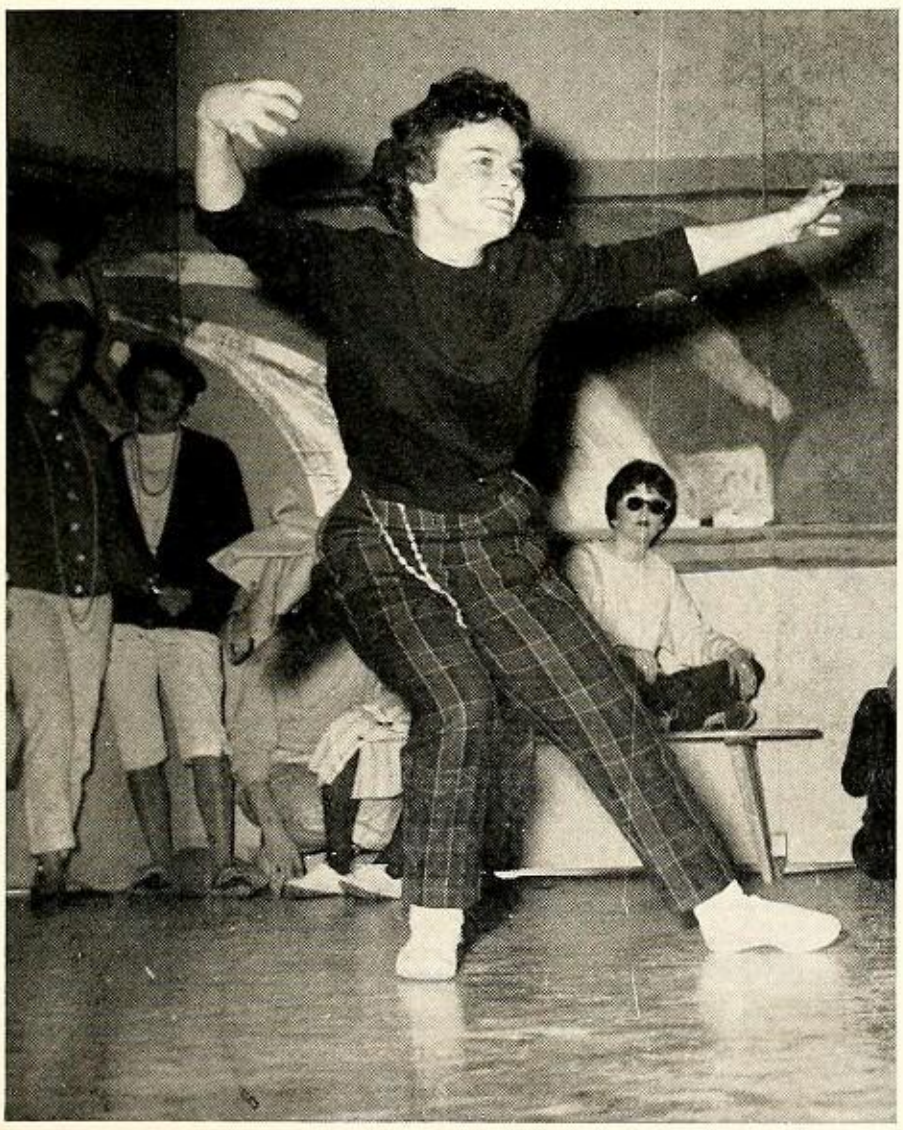
Competing for the title of Junior Prom King and Queen were Randy White, Eva Walker, Larry Morton, Pat Pritchett, Ken Corey, Ruth Ann Leach, Bob Leeper, Janet Mitchell, Jim Loviscek, and Mary Ann Martin.

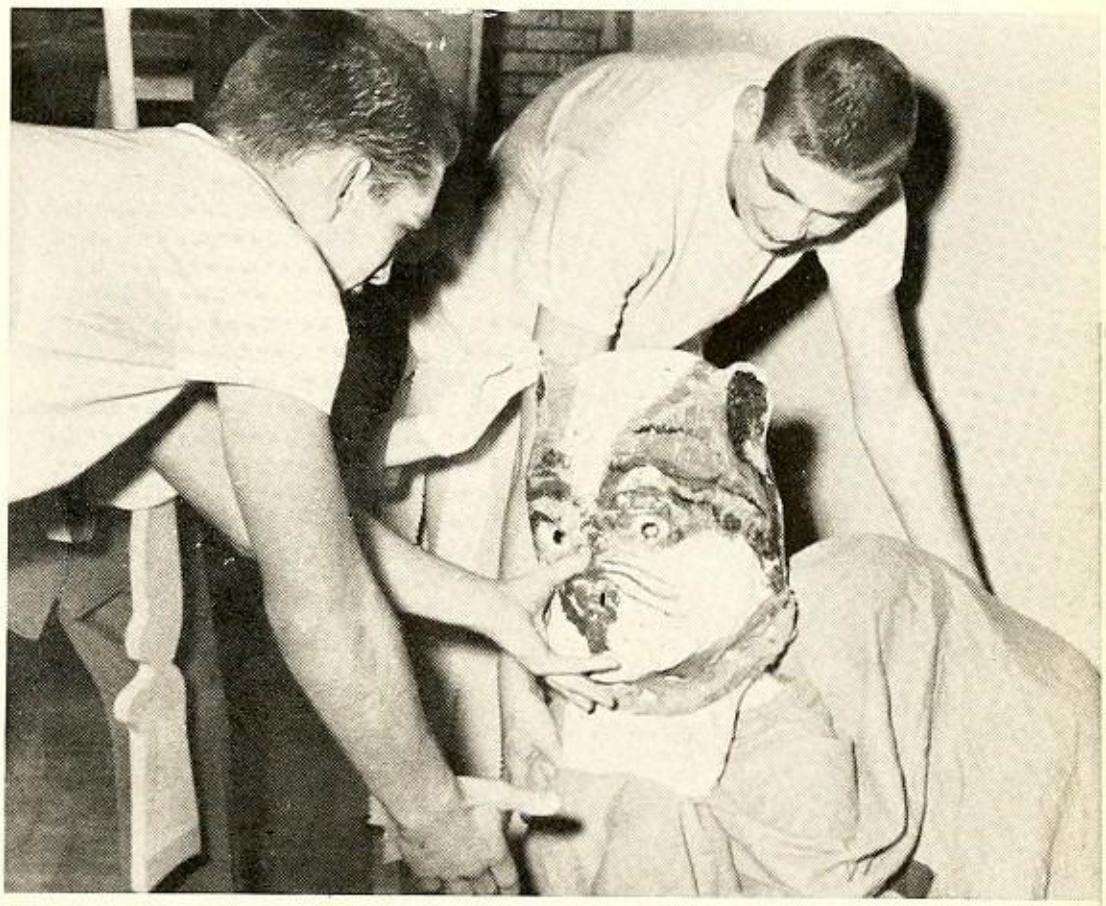
Through her graceful antics as a prima ballerina, Jean Potts made the audience roar with laughter while Karen Turner and Rita Felice look on.

Stealing down the secluded hall of Hernando's Hideway are the singing Delts, Barbara Vandergriff, Sharon Nelson, Lynda Roark, and Kay Fields.

create exciting year for juniors

Rehearsal after rehearsal goes into the making of a successful Junior Vaudeville. Talented students annually present the three act show which this year consisted of "The Beatnik Act", "Eloise", and "The Wonderful Town".





Heads off—Oops, hats off to the helping hands who helped to make the Junior Vaudeville a huge sucess.

Mack the Knife, a ruthless hoodlum, is portrayed by talented Charlene Houchins in the Beatnik Act.

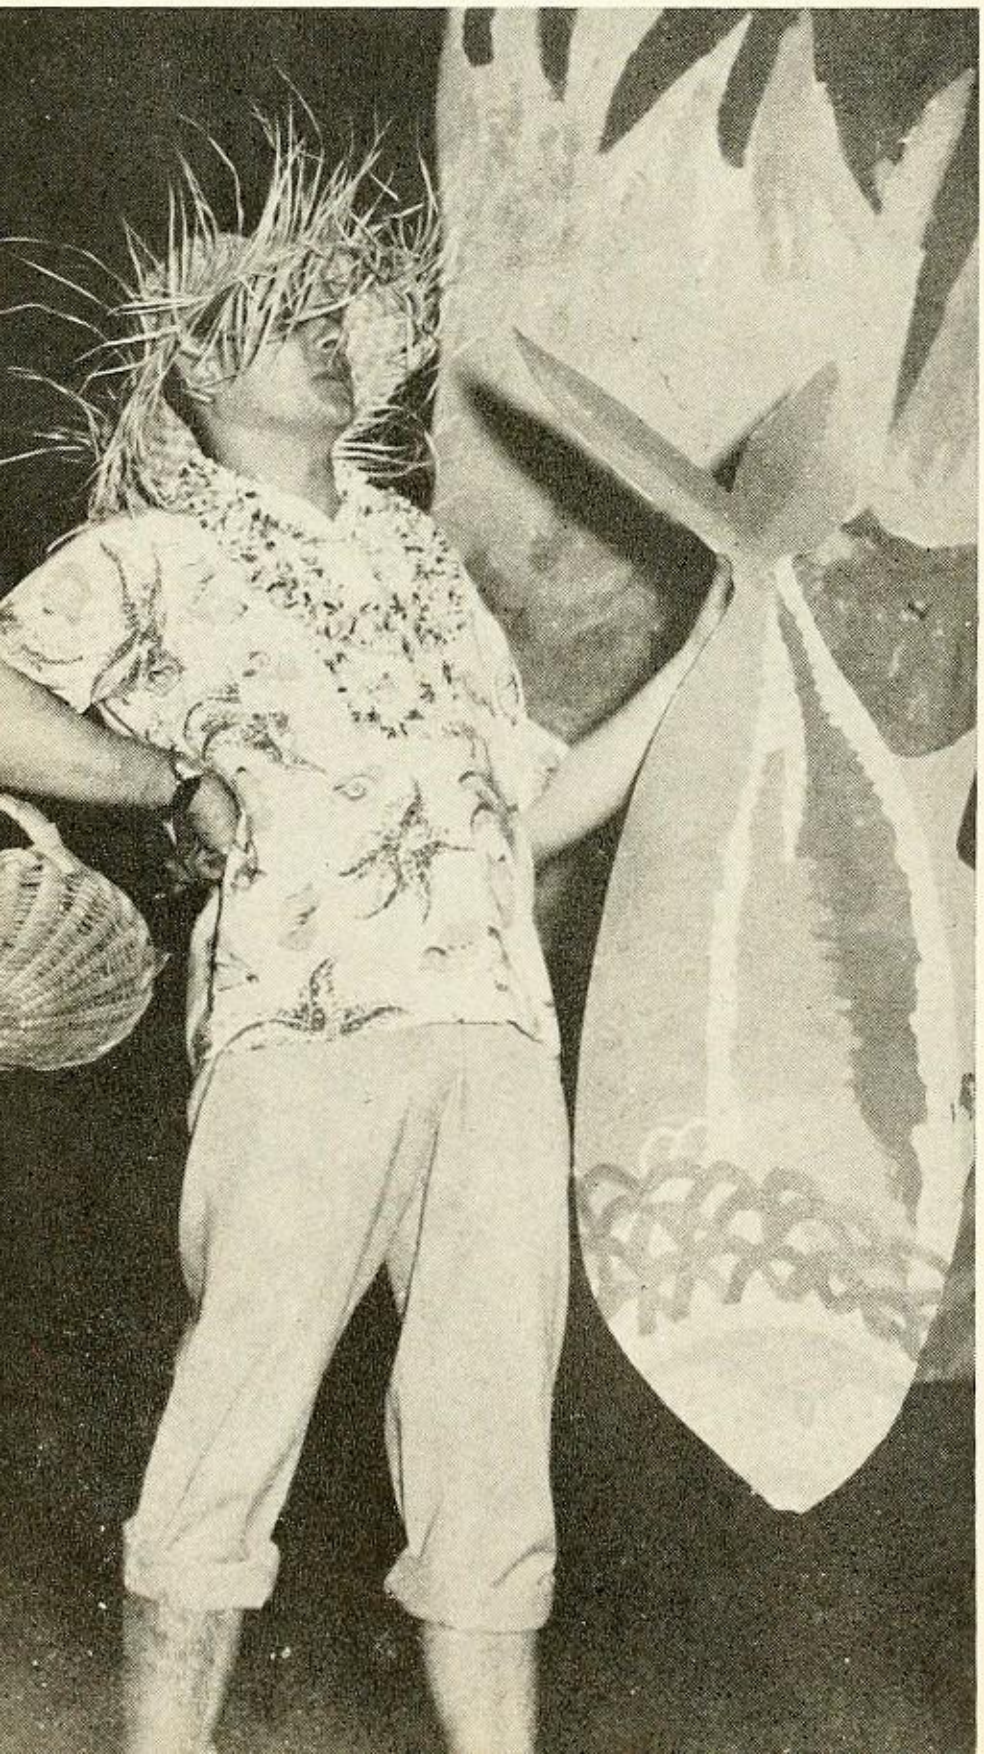
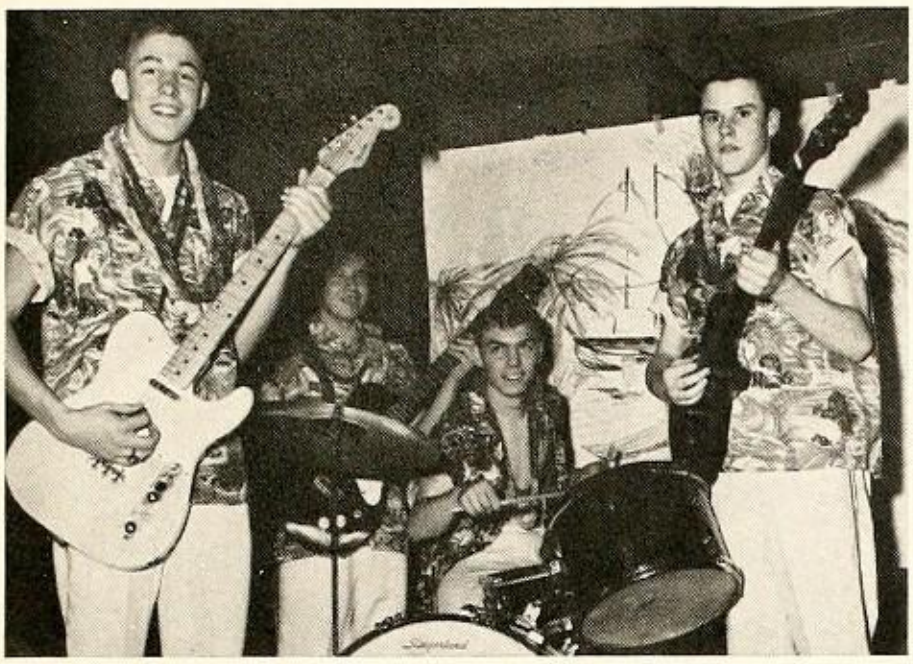
Capers captures



Taking on a Hawaiian theme, the 1960 Continental Capers spotlighted talented students and faculty who for the evening took on the air of Hawaiian characters. Highlighting the evening was the crowning of "Poi-Boy" and "Coconut Cutie" as the most popular Continental boy and girl. Through the efforts of the P-T. A. the '60 Capers was considered a success by everyone who attended and enjoyed the evening.

Pulling in a big fish, Mr. Dwight Pierce admires his catch which impressed everyone.

Chatting and eating on the make believe beach in the Faculty Show are Mrs. Mildred Ross, Mrs. Dorothy Luther, and Mrs. Viola Ramsey.



Entertaining the audience with their Hawaiian music are Wendell Stinson, Larry Morley, Gene Henderson, and Duane Henry, members of the Metronomes.

Hawaiian theme

Wearing the Hawaiian leis that they received for being chosen "Poi Boy" and "Coconut Cutie" are Bill Snowberger and Hazel White. Both received radios.

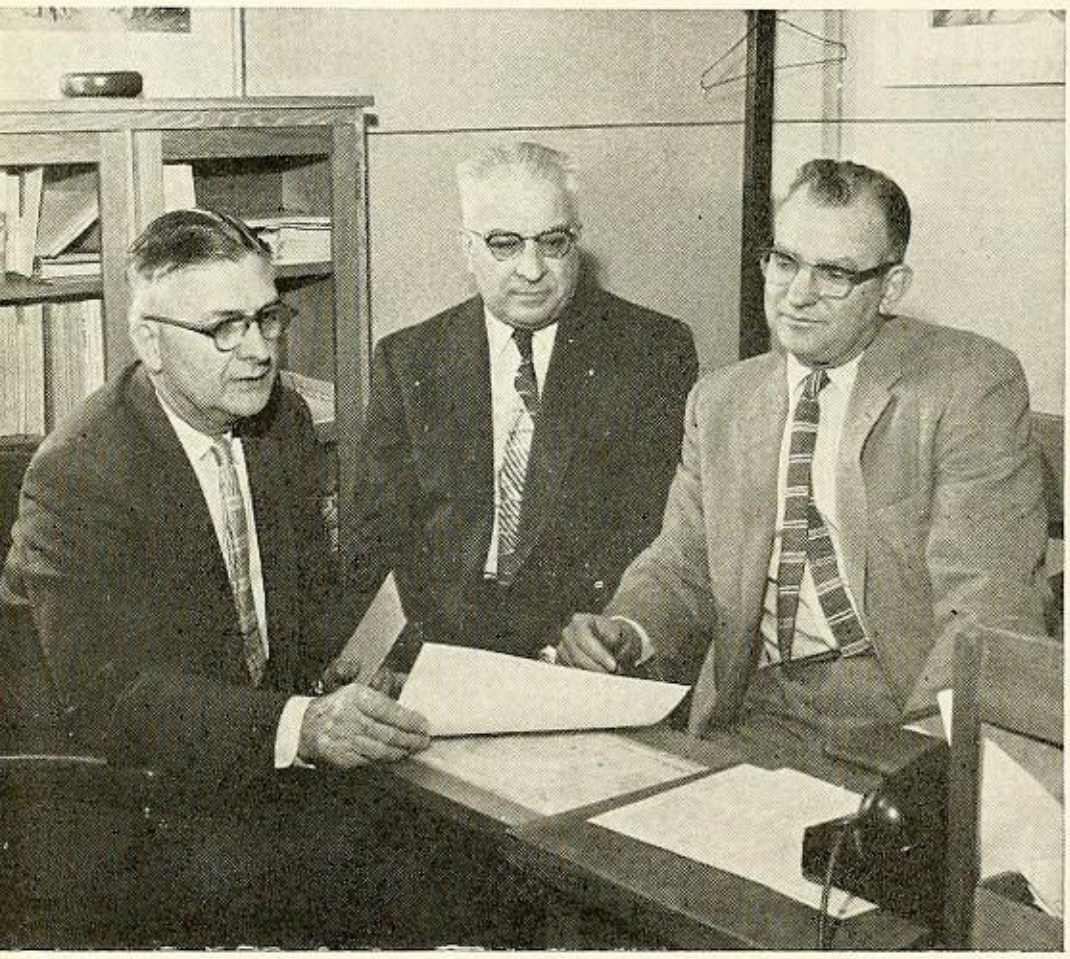
Daydreaming about the dancing Hawaiian girl, Sharon Hayes, is sailor Ronnie Gammon.

Swabbing the deck are Jo Corey, Jim Hedges, Jo Marie VanBlaircum, Ronnie Mitchell, and Judy Smith.

Striving to create a more personal note in our school relationships, H. H. Walter, principal, frequently broadcasts announcements over the address system.

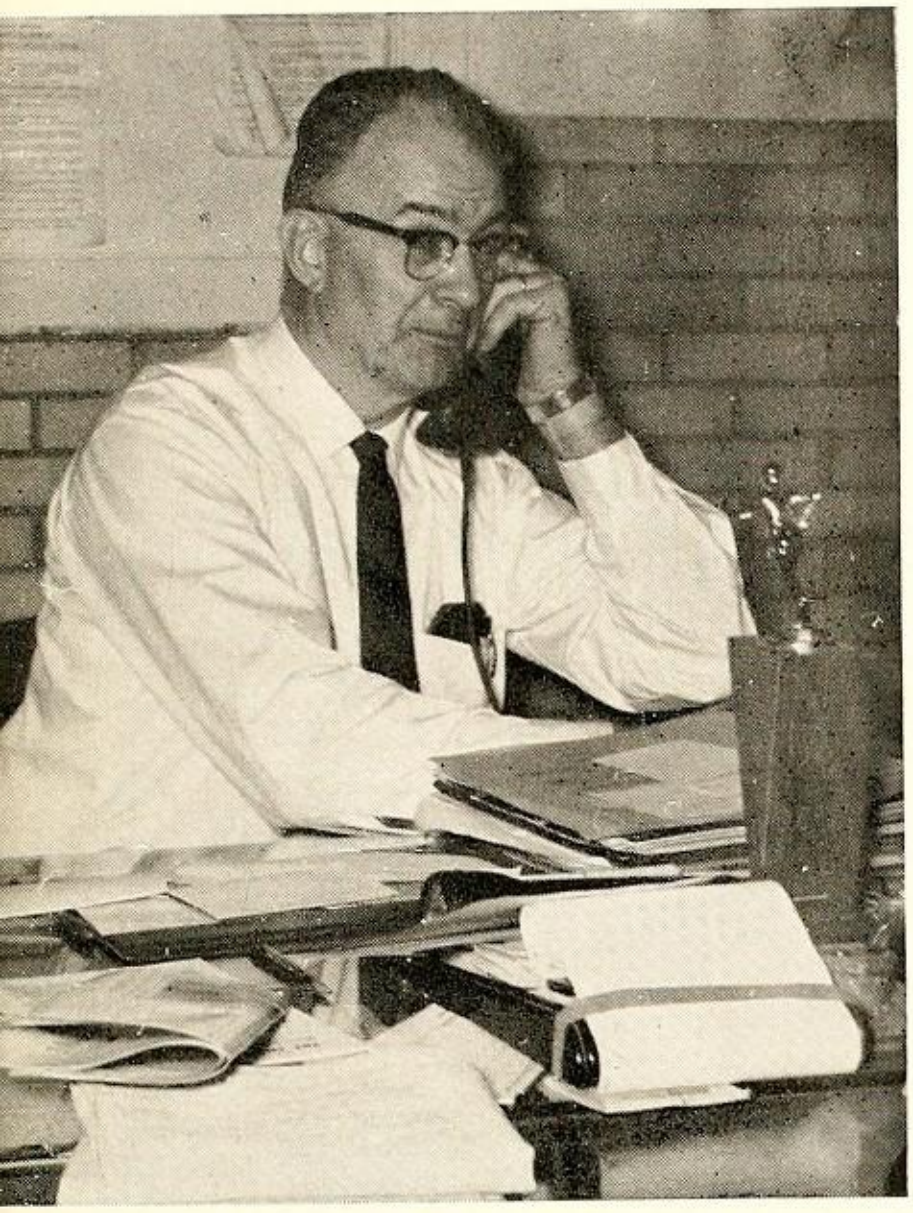
Heading our fine staff of administrators are the principal, vice-principals, counselors, and the office personnel. Our principal supervises the many activities of our school. The vice-principals help adjust programs and any other jobs which may need immediate attention. The counselors have very important jobs. They help students decide what colleges to attend, what classes to take, and help students find opportunities for employment. Friendly office personnel assist the principal and vice-principals. They take care of much of the official business of the school and welcome visitors to the school. They enroll new students and help them adjust to their new surroundings. The principal, vice-principals, counselors, and office staff are all important to our school.

Administrative staff devotes



The Big Three, H. H. Walter, principal, Justin E. Marshall and Cloyd Julian, vice-principal consult in order to keep Washington running smoothly.

Comparing notes and sharing ideas, Audie Watkins, Dean of Boys, and Leunice Horne, Dean of Girls, discuss discipline of Washington students.



During his busy schedule, Mr. Rowland Jones, athletic director, makes numerous phone contacts.

"She stoops to conquer." Mrs. Betty Werthman, English teacher, picks up the pieces after a busy day.
